Bridge Piers Bid $4,495,477

Merritt-Chapman-Scott Is Low Concern —Work May Start Sometime in May

Merritt-Chapman-Scott, of 260 Madison avenue, New York, submitted a low bid of $4,495,477 for construction of the sub-structure of the bridge over the Hudson river between here and Rhinebeck at the office of the New York State Bridge Authority on Ferry street yesterday.

The state estimated cost of the project was $5,567,000.

The bridge authority is not expected to act upon the bids until after May 1 because one of its members, Robert Hoe, of Poughkeepsie, is in Florida and will not return from there until then.

Nine bids were opened on the project yesterday afternoon and the highest was $8,923,158 by the Baltimore Construction Corp., of Baltimore, Md.

Second lowest bid was $5,226,360 by Moore Lopier Corp., of 75 West 90th street, New York; third was $5,325,000 by J. Rich Steers, 17 Battery Place, New York, and the fourth, $5,692,355 by Stock Construction Corp., Grand Central Terminal, New York.

The project calls for abutments and piers on both banks of the river and those in the river, but for no actual construction on the span itself.

Details of the low bid will be checked, and it is expected that work will start soon after the contract is awarded, probably next month.

ANPA Head Says Papers Had Record

Biggers Warns Against Giving TV Any Casual Treatment; Calls Press Best Medium

New York, April 21 (AP)—The president of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. said today newspapers had a record year in circulation and advertising in 1953 but counseled them against treating television competition lightly.

"Circulation in 1954 may continue on its merry way, but advertising 'isn't," George C. Biggers, president, Atlanta, Ga., Journal & Constitution, told the ANPA annual convention.

Biggers said television was "soaking up the advertising dollars." He described the General Foods Corp. 25th anniversary television show recently as an "atomic advertising bomb."

"Think of it," he said. "Three quarters of a million dollars spent in an hour and a half. Can you imagine an advertiser figuring such an expenditure in the newspapers of this country on a given day?"

Eight-Point Program

Biggers outlined an eight-point program so "we can continue with the best medium of them all." He suggested:

1. Better editing, more news of what the home folks are doing, brighter newspapers, shorter stories, more pictures, more background material on top news, more "how to do it" articles and more news of interest to teen-agers.

2. Livelier editorial pages because "this is one feature that television hasn't got and never can have."

3. Better selling to advertisers.

4. Better and earlier delivery of newspapers.

5. Mechanical improvements to set type faster and print newspapers in greater quantities. "Technological advances should hit the newspaper business some day with a resounding crash," he said.

6. Cooperation of employes. "Somehow, somewhere along the line," he said, "we must make our people understand that we cannot continue pyramiding our costs through feather-bedding our contracts."

7. Learn to print in color, in the face of forthcoming color television.

8. Demand that syndicates develop new features. "Are we developing new material for our newspapers as fast as the TV folks are arranging new stuff for their programs?" he asked.

Gives 1953 Figures

Giving figures for 1953, Biggers said:

"Circulation reached an all-time high, 1,785 daily newspapers with a total circulation of 54,472,286.

"National advertising revenue scaled a new peak—$634,300,000. Retail advertising revenue hit the jackpot of $2,021,000,000.

But he said costs had spiraled, with payrolls doubled in the past 10 years and the cost of newsprint more than doubled in the past 6½ years.

Turning to figures for TV, Biggers said:

Burgomaster Thanks Kingston for Holland Flood Relief

As the Dutch colors flew from the mast at city hall, Tuesday afternoon, to denote the presence of a dignitary from Holland, Jonkheer Reinier J. H. Q. Roell, burgomaster of Haamstede, The Netherlands, made an official visit with Mrs. Roell, to thank Kingston for its donations to his community and others ravaged by the flood in 1953. Oscar V. Newkirk, mayor here when the flood collection was raised, and who welcomed Queen Juliana on her tour of Kingston for the 300th anniversary, presented Burgomaster Roell with a city medal, hoping it would "ever remind him of the close friendship that exists between this community, with its Dutch ancestral ties, and Holland." Biggest Red Budget Announced in Moscow Moscow, April 21 (AP)—The Soviet government announced the biggest budget in its history tonight for 1954. It includes 100,300,000,000 rubles—17.8 per cent—for national defense.

(The Soviets set an arbitrary exchange rate of four rubles to the dollar. That would make the allotment for the armed forces $25,075,000,000.)

The record budget estimated total revenue during the year at 571,800,000,000 rubles ($142,950,000,000) and expenditures at 562,700,000,000 ($140,675,000,000), providing an anticipated surplus of 9,100,000,000 rubles.

Old Person Falls When Fire Noticed

Weeks and Stalter Carry Mrs. Ellsworth, 86, to Safety; Blaze Began in Basement

A dog's barking and rescue work by local firemen was credited today with preventing fatal consequences in a fire at the home of Ira Ellsworth, 14 Wilbur avenue at 3:05 a. m.

Ellsworth's mother, Mrs. Cornelia Ellsworth 86, who was rescued from the fire, was reported as "still in poor condition" at Kingston Hospital later today.

Fire Chief Joseph Murphy said Mrs. Ellsworth was nearing suffocation when firemen arrived. Mrs. Ira Ellsworth, he said, "in the excitement" fell and suffered a cut over one eye. She was given emergency treatment at Kingston Hospital.

Explosion, They Say

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Ellsworth were sleeping in a front room on the second floor of the two-story frame and basement house and Ira's mother was in the back room, the chief said. The dog, also in the back, started barking, and when Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth got out of bed they thought they heard an explosion in the basement.

Chief Murphy indicated that the "explosion" probably was a noise made when the fire, which apparently had been smouldering for some time, broke through a window.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth tried to get to the elderly woman in the back room, but were driven back by smoke and heat. Firemen Richard Weeks, of Central Station went through as soon as the firemen arrived and he and Clayton Stalter, also of Central Station carried Mrs. Ellsworth down the stairs.

The elderly woman was lying on the floor when he arrived in the back room, Fireman Weeks said.

Ira Ellsworth sounded the alarm from Box 4111, Greenkill and North Wilbur avenues at 3:05 a. m. It summoned men and equipment from Central and Wiltwyck stations, Wicks Engine Company and Excelsior Hose Company. Police were also notified and Officers Anthony Turck and Everett Emmick were dispatched there. The Kingston Hospital ambulance was also called.

Flames From Window

Flames shot out of a basement window after the "explosion" Ellsworth reported. Origin of the blaze is still undetermined, the chief said, but he indicated that it must have had considerable start to cause heat intense enough to break through the window and melt the solder on the gas meter, and damage an electric meter. The gas meter, which was leaking when firemen arrived, was shut off.

The blaze apparently did not start on the floor, the chief said, but near some benches. "I think it had been smoldering for some time." The second floor was affected by heat and smoke but no flames reached there, the chief said. Flames did reach the stairway, however.

The Chief said Ellsworth had told him that he had been in the basement at 6 p. m. yesterday before going fishing. He returned home at 10 p. m., and all were in bed by about 11, he reported. He saw nothing which might have been the cause of a fire, the chief said.

The firemen, who entered the burning building, wore the new Scott Airpack smoke masks, the chief reported.

Windshield Blight Hits State Areas; Still Is Mystery

Lockport, Massena, Erie and Other Points Named —Reason Still Mystery

Albany, April 21 (AP)—The automobile window blight has hit New York state and motorists in central and western sections of the state reported today that their windshields had been pitted in some unexplained manner.

Arthur Wendel and Mrs. Fern Scopa, both residents of Bristol avenue, Lockport, reported that pockmarks had appeared on the windshields of their automobiles. Mrs. Scopa said the windshields of eight or 10 other cars in her neighborhood also had been pitted.

Similar windshield marks were reported by Robert E. Colling and Kenneth R. Boyce of the town of Tonawanda, Erie county.

Cases of shattered automobile windows were reported yesterday in Massena, in northern New York and in Menands, near Albany.

In Cortland today, Glenn A. Smith of Ithaca RD 4 told a newsman he was driving toward Cortland listening to news on his car radio.

Just as the newscaster told a story about pockmarked car windows, Smith said, a bug splashed against his windshield. He added:

"Right next to where the bug landed, I saw a tiny pock mark—just an indentation on the outside of the glass."

Petrov Is Accused

Soviet Embassy Says Man Took Sums of Money

Canberra, Australia, April 21 (AP)—The Soviet embassy accused its fugitive third secretary, Vladimir Petrov, of stealing "large sums" of embassy funds by forgery today and demanded that Australia hand him over as a criminal.

In a note to the Australian government, the embassy said Petrov's story of a widespread Soviet spy plot in this country was without foundation and the mass of "espionage" documents he had given Australian authorities might be forgeries.

Mrs. Petrov, reportedly a cipher clerk in the embassy, was being held under tight security guard at the Darwin Government House.

Body Identified As Boy From Troy

Carlese Rustin in Water About Three Months, Coroner Says

The body of a young boy found late yesterday morning in the Hudson river at East Kingston has been identified as 10-year-old Carlese Rustin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Rustin of 212 Ninth street, Troy.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle said the badly decomposed body had been in the water about three months.

The boy, one of 11 children, was identified by a sister, Mrs. Rhoda Bruce of Cohoes.

The body was found at 11:30 a. m. yesterday by Patrick Mitchell and James Denter of East Kingston as they were fishing from the old Brigham dock near the East Kingston Brick Co. The two teen-agers tied the body to the dock and notified Thomas Mooney at the brick plant. Mooney summoned the sheriff's department.

Missing Since January

McCardle said the boy and a playmate, William Thomas Pickett, 11, son of Mrs. Thomas J. Mahoney of Troy, had been missing since January 24. They had been playing at the home of Mrs. Mahoney, then Mrs. Beulah Pickett of 568 River street, Troy, when they left to go to the movies.

According to McCardle, the two boys were seen on the ice of the Hudson river by some other children. They apparently "must have fallen through and drowned."

Capehart Accuses Builders Group of Harmful Tactics

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) today accused the National Association of Homebuilders of "trying to crucify this administration" and the Senate Banking Committee for their probe of multi-million dollar housing scandals.

Capehart, chairman of the Banking Committee, told R. G. Hughes, president of the homebuilders:

"We are not going to permit you or any other person . . to fleece the American people." He said he did not "believe in your trying to beat the brains out of a committee (which is) trying to do an honest job."

Read Statement

Capehart's outbreak came just after he read a statment issued by Hughes last week when the housing scandals broke into the open.

That statement cautioned against a "circus atmosphere" which would "give the Federal Housing Administration a false reputation" and stated, according to Capehart, that "investigations, make big headlines."

Hughes, on behalf of the homebuilders, disputed charges that the government is millions of dollars out of pocket and that too-high rents have resulted from alleged widespread abuses under the government's loan insurance program.

The committee is investigating allegations that some apartment builders raked in "unconscionable" profits by obtaining oversize loans through either dishonesty or inefficiency on the part of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) officials.

Wilson Says Row Bad for Morale

Secretary Believes Hensel Is Fully Honest; Lies Claimed

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson, speaking on the eve of Senate hearings and with new charges swirling about one of his aides, said today the Army-McCarthy row has "done no good" to military morale.

Personally, the defense chief told a news conference, he feels that "in these critical times men of good will ought to get together to solve these problems" confronting the nation.

Wilson said he believes H. Struve Hensel, asst. secretary of defense, is "a completely honest man."

Bidault Meets Secretary at Airport; Review of Indochina Is in Prospect

Paris, April 21 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here today to attend the meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and to consult with western allies on strategy for the Geneva conference.

He was greeted at the airport by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault who will be his guest at a private dinner this evening when they will review the Indochinese question and other problems coming up at Geneva.

Dulles told newsmen Friday's NATO meeting is of "special significance for one of its purposes is to take notice of the fact that five years ago this month the North Atlantic Treaty was signed. That was an historic event.

U.S. Flies French to Indochina

Paris, April 21 (AP)—The U. S. Air Force is ferrying French paratroopers to Indochina for dropping into besieged Dien Bien Phu, authoritative sources said today.

These sources said the American pilots would land the troops in a non-combat area, where French pilots or American civilians would ferry them on to the northwest Indochina fortress.

The paratroopers were flown from Paris' big Orly airfield yesterday in U. S. Air Force transports. They have not yet arrived in Indochina.

Number Is Secret

The number of jumpers being ferried and the route followed are military secrets.

The U. S. Air Force provided the air lift at the request of the French government.

The American government considers this action compatible with U. S. policy and the American military assistance program to France and Indochina, competent American sources said.

It was learned that the U. S. Air Force also will ferry French troops from North Africa to Indochina, though American sources here considered the France-to-Indochina operation a "one-shot" affair.

The departure point from North Africa meanwhile was kept secret.

Addresses Battalion

Although officials would not say how many troops were being ferried, French Army Secretary Pierre De Chevigne addressed the 7th Battalion of Franch Commando Paratroops at Quimper Sunday and told them they were leaving immediately for Indochina without the month's leave usually granted before overseas duty.

"You leave in exceptional circumstances," Chevigne told the troops after a parade "which have forced us to call on you for sacrifices.

"To aid our comrades at Dien Bien Phu we are putting into the battle all our forces."

He added these reinforcements would permit throwing troops already in Indochina into the Dien Bien Phu battle immediately.

"You yourself may have the glory of fighting at Dien Bien Phu," Chevigne said.

Supplies Planes

The United States already is supplying the French with fighters, attack bombers and transport planes for their fight against the Vietminh. Some 200 American Air force ground personnel

Most Garagemen May Seek Inspection Permits

By JOHN R. WARREN

Local automobile dealers and independent garage operators this week expressed approval of the state's new compulsory automobile inspection law and most of them were anxious to apply for designation as authorized inspection stations.

The only hesitation was on the part of the owners of garages who felt that the capital investment in new equipment that might be required for designation might be too high for them to meet.

Agreement on Need

A sampling of opinions that included representative new car dealers, independent garage owners and service station operators revealed that all agreed the measure is needed from the standpoint of public safety.

From the business angle, dealers and garage owners expressed their intention to apply for designation as authorized inspection stations as a service to their customers and a means of attracting more automoble owners to their places of business.

May Get Other Work

The amount of money received in fees may not cover costs of an inspection, many felt, but there would always be the likelihood that motorists needing work done to make their cars safe will have that work done in the same garage where the inspection was made. Conversely, a customer who has to go elsewhere for an inspection may eventually be won over by the garage that is authorized to make the inspections.

Smaller operators, however, are concerned over what additional facilities they will have to purchase in order to meet state requirements for designation. If an investment of $6,000 or $7,000 is needed for equipment to meet minimum state standards, it may be economically unwise for some of the smaller garages to apply for designation. Larger garages that already have all or most of the needed testing devices and sufficient help to carry the additional load will be able to swing into the inspection business at a minimum of expense.

Was Signed April 17

Governor Thomas E. Dewey signed the semi-annual inspection bill into law on Saturday. It provides that after Sept. 1, 1955, no motor vehicle or motorcycle may be operated on the highways of the state without a certificate showing it has passed inspection at a licensed inspection station.

Administrative details remain to be worked out, and it will be up to the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner to determine what equipment and staff a garage must possess in order to meet licensing standards.

Safety Chief Topic

Although this survey was intended to concentrate on the effects of the new law on business—the safety angle having been covered in detail over the past years as agitation for compulsory inspection grew in several quarters—the idea of safety came up again and again in conversations.

Typical was the comment of John A. Bennett of Wiltwyck Motors: "It's not going to increase our business, but it will eliminate a lot of cars not safe on the road. If it will save a couple of lives, it will be a good thing."

Bennett pointed out that New York state is surrounded by compulsory inspection states, and as a result has become a "dumping spot" for all the unsafe vehicles in the entire region.

Calls Step Correct

"Sure, I'm in favor of the safety angle," said Harold B. Skellan, secretary-treasurer of Stuyvesant Motors, Inc. The compulsory inspection law "is a step in the right direction," he said, but warned against expecting too much in the way of improved highway safety. "It is still dependent upon the man behind the wheel," he said. As for revenue from the inspections, Skellan said the company "certainly won't make money on the inspections themselves, but may pick up a little service business from people whose

Boston Orchestra and Star Soprano to Be Heard in City

The famous Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, and Mildred Miller, mezzo soprano, who sang more than 32 performances at the Metropolitan Opera this season, will be brought to Kingston next winter under the auspices of Kingston Community Concert Association as two of the three concerts in its 26th annual series. The local groups, boasting a history almost as old as the concert organized audience plan in America, hopes again to pass its goal of more than 1,000 members for next year.

Instructions for the one-week membership campaign, May 2 to 9, are being given to captains late this afternoon at a tea in the home of Mrs. Bernard Forst, 32 Maiden Lane. Mrs. Forst and Mrs. Reynolds B. Carr, co-chairmen of the drive, have completed preliminary work for the drive. Workers will receive materials during the next week and present members will be contacted for renewals.

The association has been completely subscribed for the past two seasons, a record of which its workers and board of directors is proud. Part of this they feel is due to the program selections of such artists as Eleanor Steber, Eugene Conley, violinist Carroll Glenn and the Buffalo Philharmonic orchestra, Efrem Kurtz, conducting, with Theodore Lettvin as piano soloist.

One concert still remains in the present series which closes the association's 25th year, the new type concert program, musical Americana, a group of about 20 singers and dancers. This will feature

Widnall Calls His Victory Confidence Vote for Ike

Newark, N. J., April 21 (AP)—Rep. William B. Widnall today hailed his Republican primary election victory over pro-McCarthy J. Parnell Thomas as a vote of confidence in President Eisenhower rather than a test of McCarthyism.

"It was not a true test of McCarthyism," said Widnall, who defeated Thomas by a 35,000 to 5,000 vote in the standout congressional contest of yesterday's primary election in New Jersey.

"I think the results show that you need more than McCarthy as a platform on which to make a successful run," he said in a victory statement. He said he thought pro-McCarthy sentiment had fallen off recently.

Thomas, who had served seven terms in Congress before he was jailed in 1949 for payroll padding, had campaigned as a "1,000 per cent" supporter of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.).

Widnall indicated the record Thomas carried into the election, rather than his support of McCarthy, hurt him at the polls in the state's mostly rural Seventh Congressional District, traditionally Republican.

In addition to the Widnall-Thomas contest, New Jersey voters selected Republican and Democratic candidates in the state's 13 other congressional districts and voted on two gambling referenda.

Here are the highlights of the election:

All major cities and most of the other 566 municipalities in the state authorized local licensing of

Ira Ellsworth sounded the alarm from Box 4111, Greenkill and North Wilbur avenues at 3:05 a. m. It summoned men and equipment from Central and Wiltwyck stations, Wicks Engine Company and Excelsior Hose Company. Police were also notified and Officers Anthony Turck and Everett Emmick were dispatched there. The Kingston Hospital ambulance was also called.

Flames From Window

Flames shot out of a basement window after the "explosion" Ellsworth reported. Origin of the blaze is still undetermined, the chief said, but he indicated that it must have had considerable start to cause heat intense enough to break through the window and melt the solder on the gas meter, and damage an electric meter. The gas meter, which was leaking when firemen arrived, was shut off.

The blaze apparently did not start on the floor, the chief said, but near some benches. "I think it had been smoldering for some time." The second floor was affected by heat and smoke but no flames reached there, the chief said. Flames did reach the stairway, however.

The Chief said Ellsworth had told him that he had been in the basement at 6 p. m. yesterday before going fishing. He returned home at 10 p. m., and all were in bed by about 11, he reported. He saw nothing which might have been the cause of a fire, the chief said.

The firemen, who entered the burning building, wore the new Scott Airpack smoke masks, the chief reported.

Windshield Blight Hits State Areas; Still Is Mystery

Lockport, Massena, Erie and Other Points Named —Reason Still Mystery

Albany, April 21 (AP)—The automobile window blight has hit New York state and motorists in central and western sections of the state reported today that their windshields had been pitted in some unexplained manner.

Arthur Wendel and Mrs. Fern Scopa, both residents of Bristol avenue, Lockport, reported that pockmarks had appeared on the windshields of their automobiles. Mrs. Scopa said the windshields of eight or 10 other cars in her neighborhood also had been pitted.

Similar windshield marks were reported by Robert E. Colling and Kenneth R. Boyce of the town of Tonawanda, Erie county.

Cases of shattered automobile windows were reported yesterday in Massena, in northern New York and in Menands, near Albany.

In Cortland today, Glenn A. Smith of Ithaca RD 4 told a newsman he was driving toward Cortland listening to news on his car radio.

Just as the newscaster told a story about pockmarked car windows, Smith said, a bug splashed against his windshield. He added:

"Right next to where the bug landed, I saw a tiny pock mark—just an indentation on the outside of the glass."

Still Is Mystery

Capehart Accuses Builders Group of Harmful Tactics

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) today accused the National Association of Homebuilders of "trying to crucify this administration" and the Senate Banking Committee for their probe of multi-million dollar housing scandals.

Capehart, chairman of the Banking Committee, told R. G. Hughes, president of the homebuilders:

"We are not going to permit you or any other person . . . to fleece the American people." He said he did not "believe in your trying to beat the brains out of a committee (which is) trying to do an honest job."

Read Statement

Capehart's outbreak came just after he read a statment issued by Hughes last week when the housing scandals broke into the open.

That statement cautioned against a "circus atmosphere" which would "give the Federal Housing Administration a false reputation" and stated, according to Capehart, that "investigations, make big headlines."

Hughes, on behalf of the homebuilders, disputed charges that the government is millions of dollars out of pocket and that too-high rents have resulted from alleged widespread abuses under the government's loan insurance program.

The committee is investigating allegations that some apartment builders raked in "unconscionable" profits by obtaining oversize loans through either dishonesty or inefficiency on the part of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) officials.

Petrov Is Accused

Soviet Embassy Says Man Took Sums of Money

Canberra, Australia, April 21 (AP)—The Soviet embassy accused its fugitive third secretary, Vladimir Petrov, of stealing "large sums" of embassy funds by forgery today and demanded that Australia hand him over as a criminal.

In a note to the Australian government, the embassy said Petrov's story of a widespread Soviet spy plot in this country was without foundation and the mass of "espionage" documents he had given Australian authorities might be forgeries.

Mrs. Petrov, reportedly a cipher clerk in the embassy, was being held under tight security guard at the Darwin Government House.

Body Identified As Boy From Troy

Carlese Rustin in Water About Three Months, Coroner Says

The body of a young boy found late yesterday morning in the Hudson river at East Kingston has been identified as 10-year-old Carlese Rustin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Rustin of 212 Ninth street, Troy.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle said the badly decomposed body had been in the water about three months.

The boy, one of 11 children, was identified by a sister, Mrs. Rhoda Bruce of Cohoes.

The body was found at 11:30 a. m. yesterday by Patrick Mitchell and James Denter of East Kingston as they were fishing from the old Brigham dock near the East Kingston Brick Co. The two teen-agers tied the body to the dock and notified Thomas Mooney at the brick plant. Mooney summoned the sheriff's department.

Missing Since January

McCardle said the boy and a playmate, William Thomas Pickett, 11, son of Mrs. Thomas J. Mahoney of Troy, had been missing since January 24. They had been playing at the home of Mrs. Mahoney, then Mrs. Beulah Pickett of 568 River street, Troy, when they left to go to the movies.

According to McCardle, the two boys were seen on the ice of the Hudson river by some other children. They apparently "must have fallen through and drowned."

Two Barns, Sheds Burned at Ruby

Several Hundred Acres of Woodland Seared; Origin Unknown

A fire of unknown origin destroyed two barns and a group of sheds on the unoccupied Albert H. Cook estate near Ruby early yesterday afternoon and burned through several hundred acres of woodland before it was brought under control.

The first call was received at Central Station in Kingston at 2:19 p. m., and the Mt. Marion-Ruby Fire Department was dispatched.

At 2:20 p. m., in response to a request from Chief Raymond Scheffel of the Mt. Marion-Ruby Department for assistance, Ulster Hose was dispatched. Equipment from Sawkill was dispatched at

Secretary Believes Hensel Is Fully Honest; Lies Claimed

Washington, April 21 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson, speaking on the eve of Senate hearings and with new charges swirling about one of his aides, said today the Army-McCarthy row has "done no good" to military morale.

Personally, the defense chief told a news conference, he feels that "in these critical times men of good will ought to get together to solve these problems" confronting the nation.

Wilson said he believes H. Struve Hensel, asst. secretary of defense, is "a completely honest man."

Brought by McCarthy

Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) brought Hensel's name into the row yesterday when he filed a "bill of particulars" with the Sen-

Bidault Meets Secretary at Airport; Review of Indochina Is in Prospect

Paris, April 21 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here today to attend the meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and to consult with western allies on strategy for the Geneva conference.

He was greeted at the airport by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault who will be his guest at a private dinner this evening when they will review the Indochinese question and other problems coming up at Geneva.

Dulles told newsmen Friday's NATO meeting is of "special significance for one of its purposes is to take notice of the fact that five years ago this month the North Atlantic Treaty was signed. That was an historic event.

Have Made Progress

In the past five years," Dulles said, "we have made impressive progress in translating the sym-

U.S. Flies French to Indochina

Paris, April 21 (AP)—The U. S. Air Force is ferrying French paratroopers to Indochina for dropping into besieged Dien Bien Phu, authoritative sources said today.

These sources said the American pilots would land the troops in a non-combat area, where French pilots or American civilians would ferry them on to the northwest Indochina fortress.

The paratroopers were flown from Paris' big Orly airfield yesterday in U. S. Air Force transports. They have not yet arrived in Indochina.

Number Is Secret

The number of jumpers being ferried and the route followed are military secrets.

The U. S. Air Force provided the air lift at the request of the French government.

The American government considers this action compatible with U. S. policy and the American military assistance program to France and Indochina, competent American sources said.

It was learned that the U. S. Air Force also will ferry French troops from North Africa to Indochina, though American sources here considered the France-to-Indochina operation a "one-shot" affair.

The departure point from North Africa meanwhile was kept secret.

Addresses Battalion

Although officials would not say how many troops were being ferried, French Army Secretary Pierre De Chevigne addressed the 7th Battalion of Franch Commando Paratroops at Quimper Sunday and told them they were leaving immediately for Indochina without the month's leave usually granted before overseas duty.

"You leave in exceptional circumstances," Chevigne told the troops after a parade "which have forced us to call on you for sacrifices.

"To aid our comrades at Dien Bien Phu we are putting into the battle all our forces."

He added these reinforcements would permit throwing troops already in Indochina into the Dien Bien Phu battle immediately.

"You yourself may have the glory of fighting at Dien Bien Phu," Chevigne said.

Supplies Planes

The United States already is supplying the French with fighters, attack bombers and transport planes for their fight against the Vietminh. Some 200 American Air force ground personnel

Most Garagemen May Seek Inspection Permits

By JOHN R. WARREN

Local automobile dealers and independent garage operators this week expressed approval of the state's new compulsory automobile inspection law and most of them were anxious to apply for designation as authorized inspection stations.

The only hesitation was on the part of the owners of garages who felt that the capital investment in new equipment that might be required for designation might be too high for them to meet.

Agreement on Need

A sampling of opinions that included representative new car dealers, independent garage owners and service station operators revealed that all agreed the measure is needed from the standpoint of public safety.

From the business angle, dealers and garage owners expressed their intention to apply for designation as authorized inspection stations as a service to their customers and a means of attracting more automoble owners to their places of business.

May Get Other Work

The amount of money received in fees may not cover costs of an inspection, many felt, but there would always be the likelihood that motorists needing work done to make their cars safe will have that work done in the same garage where the inspection was made. Conversely, a customer who has to go elsewhere for an inspection may eventually be won over by the garage that is authorized to make the inspections.

Smaller operators, however, are concerned over what additional facilities they will have to purchase in order to meet state requirements for designation. If an investment of $6,000 or $7,000 is needed for equipment to meet minimum state standards, it may be economically unwise for some of the smaller garages to apply for designation. Larger garages that already have all or most of the needed testing devices and sufficient help to carry the additional load will be able to swing into the inspection business at a minimum of expense.

Was Signed April 17

Governor Thomas E. Dewey signed the semi-annual inspection bill into law on Saturday. It provides that after Sept. 1, 1955, no motor vehicle or motorcycle may be operated on the highways of the state without a certificate showing it has passed inspection at a licensed inspection station.

Administrative details remain to be worked out, and it will be up to the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner to determine what equipment and staff a garage must possess in order to meet licensing standards.

Safety Chief Topic

Although this survey was intended to concentrate on the effects of the new law on business—the safety angle having been covered in detail over the past years as agitation for compulsory inspection grew in several quarters—the idea of safety came up again and again in conversations.

Typical was the comment of John A. Bennett of Wiltwyck Motors: "It's not going to increase our business, but it will eliminate a lot of cars not safe on the road. If it will save a couple of lives, it will be a good thing."

Bennett pointed out that New York state is surrounded by compulsory inspection states, and as a result has become a "dumping spot" for all the unsafe vehicles in the entire region.

Calls Step Correct

"Sure, I'm in favor of the safety angle," said Harold B. Skellan, secretary-treasurer of Stuyvesant Motors, Inc. The compulsory inspection law "is a step in the right direction," he said, but warned against expecting too much in the way of improved highway safety. "It is still dependent upon the man behind the wheel," he said. As for revenue from the inspections, Skellan said the company "certainly won't make money on the inspections themselves, but may pick up a little service business from people whose

Boston Orchestra and Star Soprano to Be Heard in City

The famous Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, and Mildred Miller, mezzo soprano, who sang more than 32 performances at the Metropolitan Opera this season, will be brought to Kingston next winter under the auspices of Kingston Community Concert Association as two of the three concerts in its 26th annual series. The local groups, boasting a history almost as old as the concert organized audience plan in America, hopes again to pass its goal of more than 1,000 members for next year.

Instructions for the one-week membership campaign, May 2 to 9, are being given to captains late this afternoon at a tea in the home of Mrs. Bernard Forst, 32 Maiden Lane. Mrs. Forst and Mrs. Reynolds B. Carr, co-chairmen of the drive, have completed preliminary work for the drive. Workers will receive materials during the next week and present members will be contacted for renewals.

The association has been completely subscribed for the past two seasons, a record of which its workers and board of directors is proud. Part of this they feel is due to the program selections of such artists as Eleanor Steber, Eugene Conley, violinist Carroll Glenn and the Buffalo Philharmonic orchestra, Efrem Kurtz, conducting, with Theodore Lettvin as piano soloist.

One concert still remains in the present series which closes the association's 25th year, the new type concert program, musical Americana, a group of about 20 singers and dancers. This will feature

Widnall Calls His Victory Confidence Vote for Ike

Newark, N. J., April 21 (AP)—Rep. William B. Widnall today hailed his Republican primary election victory over pro-McCarthy J. Parnell Thomas as a vote of confidence in President Eisenhower rather than a test of McCarthyism.

"It was not a true test of McCarthyism," said Widnall, who defeated Thomas by a 35,000 to 5,000 vote in the standout congressional contest of yesterday's primary election in New Jersey.

"I think the results show that you need more than McCarthy as a platform on which to make a successful run," he said in a victory statement. He said he thought pro-McCarthy sentiment had fallen off recently.

Thomas, who had served seven terms in Congress before he was jailed in 1949 for payroll padding, had campaigned as a "1,000 per cent" supporter of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.).

Widnall indicated the record Thomas carried into the election, rather than his support of McCarthy, hurt him at the polls in the state's mostly rural Seventh Congressional District, traditionally Republican.

In addition to the Widnall-Thomas contest, New Jersey voters selected Republican and Democratic candidates in the state's 13 other congressional districts and voted on two gambling referenda.

Here are the highlights of the election:

All major cities and most of the other 566 municipalities in the state authorized local licensing of

MODENA NEWS

Modena, April 21—Victory Sunday for Every Member Canvass was conducted in the Modena Methodist Church on Sunday, when members of the congregation had the opportunity to make their pledges for the new year's budget of the church. The traditional Easter sunrise services were followed by a family style breakfast in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, and an Easter egg hunt for members of the Sunday school.

Plans for National Home Demonstration Week, scheduled May 3-8, are being made by the members of the local unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau. Date for district Achievement Day in this community will be announced later. LEGENDARY EDITOR

Every profession has its legends and its legendary figures. Walter Howey, who died recently at the age of 72, was a fantastic character in an era in American journalism when fantastic characters were so common they scarcely attracted attention.

He had a long career which extended back to 1903 when he served a brief apprenticeship on a Chicago newspaper. He became a city editor, an exposer of graft and corruption, a managing editor of the New York Daily News. Millions of Americans saw the play and the movie "Front Page" which chronicled the adventures of the demon reporter "Hildy Johnson" and his rough, tough, hell-for-leather editor "Walter Burns." The character of Walter Burns was patterned after Howey, under whose tutelage the authors Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur served as reporters.

These "good old days" in the newspaper business were not so good as they are sometimes painted. Reporting today is far more accurate, faster, more efficient than it was then. But out of the sensational era many of the modern methods of handling news were developed.

Howey was more than merely a sensationalist, however. He is credited with publishing the first veterans' column in any newspaper, the first medical column and many others. He also played a big part in developing devices for transmitting pictures by the use of a sound-photo system. For his real accomplishments, as well as the legends which surrounded him, he is assured of a place in any history of the newspaper business in our day.

NOT GUILTY

At a Senate committee hearing on copyright laws, four prominent authors, including Carl Sandburg, appeared to ask for a universal copyright law. In the course of their testimony one author indicated that he thought all authors were indignant over the present state of affairs. Senator Hickenlooper replied that he thought newspapermen and authors were always indignant.

It may be that the Senator, in lumping novelists and newspapermen together, is passing an injustice upon newspapermen. We have always suspected that some of our colleagues had dispositions which could stand improvement; but it gives us pause to think that someone might describe us as perpetually indignant. To us it seems like a clear case of guilt by association.

The Senator places newspapermen in a bad spot. Imagine the wives of the men who toil in newspaper offices taking up the charge. A newsman complains that the meat is too well-done and his spouse shrugs her shoulders and says "nothing pleases you. Didn't that senator say you were always indignant?"

No, Senator, newspapermen have their fair share of irritability. But some of the dourest newspapermen we have known have seemed like smiling babes compared to Senators whipping up righteous anger against sin.

UNDERDOG'S DAY

Little Ben Hogan has pulled off so many golfing miracles we have come to expect them in endless procession. There must inevitably be some disappointment, therefore, when he fails to capture a big tournament, as he did the Masters' at Augusta, Ga.

But folks who like to cheer for the underdog can toss off a few hurrahs for the man who beat Hogan in a playoff by a single stroke—Sam Snead, one of the real pile drivers in the business.

Slammin' Sammy has been knocking at the door of the throne room so long his knuckles are raw. Year after year, he never seemed to be able to take the big ones he wanted. So it is pretty good balm for the compassionate souls among us that Snead finally did crack through.

TAKE A TIP FROM US

Here's a tip to help you plan for your longest vacation—retirement. Start investing today in United States Savings Bonds. They pay more money in less time than ever before. Your Savings Bonds mature in just under 10 years and pay back $4 for every $3 you put in. You can hold on to your Bonds as long as 10 more years beyond maturity and earn 3 per cent interest compounded semi-annually.

Make Savings Bonds part of your retirement plans. Buy Bonds regularly on the pay roll savings plan where you work, or at your bank, and get the future financial security you've dreamed about.

THE FARM PROBLEM

On thinks of the American farmer as the most individualistic of individuals, the backbone of conservatism in this country. During the past two decades, the American farmer has become as highly organized as labor, is represented by a number of huge organizations which differ in principle and which quarrel with each other, each seeking to establish a particular position in Congress.

The principal quarrel at this moment is over price supports, whether they should be rigid or flexible.

Taking three items, butter, cheese and milk, it is possible to see how great the burden is upon the Government. During one week in March about 120,000,000 pounds of these products were dumped upon the Government:

Estimated Stocks in Merchandising Position 1/		Estimated Total Stocks 2/
March 24	March 31	March 24	March 31
	Butter (Lbs.)
253,798,000	273,875,000	328,129,000	364,170,000
	Cheese (Lbs.)
238,151,000	366,880,000	339,172,000	483,108,000
	Milk (Dried) (Lbs.)
413,826,000	484,600,000	539,244,000	598,795,000

1/ Estimated CCC stocks which are in store and not committed for sale or movement.

2/ Estimated total stocks owned by CCC, including stocks shown in column one, plus commitments to purchase less commitments to sell.

The largest farm organization is the Grange, established in 1867, now having more than 8,000 local organizations which include 850,000 members. The Grange is organized in 37 states. It has been generally for flexible price supports, but has somewhat weakened recently and tends to favor the two-price system on wheat.

The American Farm Bureau Federation was organized in 1919 and now has 1,591,777 members. They are organized in 48 states. This is probably the most influential politically of the farm groups. Most of the state groups are in favor of flexible price supports; 12 states are opposed to the flexible price supports. The national organization is in favor of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's farm program.

The National Farmers Union was organized in 1902 and claims a membership of about 235,000. It used to be strongest in the one-crop areas, such as the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, but is now growing rapidly in such states as Oklahoma, Arkansas and some others.

The Farmers Union is for government guarantees of 100 per cent of parity on all farm products. They claim credit for the present farm policy and oppose Secretary Benson, who is trying to change it. It is interesting to note that the Farmers Union has absorbed several important personalities of the Truman Administration, such as former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, protagonist of the Brannan Plan, who is now its counsel, and Leon Keyserling, former chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, who is a special assistant to President James Patton.

The literature of the Farmers Union differs from the other organizations because it would seem to be a continuation of the 19th Century Populist movement. In its official history, describing the exploitation of the farmers by the "robber barons" and the railroads, they say:

"As a result of this situation, the farmers united and formed class organizations and political movements. They founded the Grange which had as its principal objective the destruction of monopoly. They formed the Greenback Movement to cheapen the currency and thus increase the value of their products. They formed the Silver Movement for the same reason, and they united in the Populist Party to elect men to redress their grievances and enact laws to carry out their demands.

"But all of these protest groups fell by the wayside. . . ."

There are a number of other farm organizations such as the National Council of Farmers Cooperatives and many special commodity groups. All farm organizations favor some type of price supports, rigid or flexible. There is inadequate coordination even when they agree on a program. The Farmers Union often cooperates with the C.I.O. on farmer-labor concepts.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MODERN TREATMENT OF THE ANEMIAS

A close friend of mine was greatly interested in a mutual friend who was in the hospital, a patient with anemia which, unfortunately, was of a chronic nature—chronic anemia. He was amazed at how quickly the patient's blood (the iron in it) was brought to normal with transfusions of blood.

In the Merck Report, Dr. Byron E. Hall, Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine, Stanford University School of Medicine, San Francisco, states that anemia may be caused by insufficient or faulty blood production, by blood loss, or by excessive blood destruction. Fortunately, once the cause of the anemia has been ascertained, there are relatively few cases for which modern treatment will not prove effective.

The immediate aim of the treatment is to fight shock by (a) controlling the bleeding and (b) restoring the blood volume to normal as rapidly as possible by transfusing the patient with whole blood or, if not immediately available, with blood plasma or normal saline solution. Unless the patient is in general poor condition, that is in the absence of pre-existing anemia, the iron (hemoglobin) stores in the body should be adequate for restoration of a normal blood condition.

However, in a patient giving a history of bleeding prior to the present attack, in whom the blood reserves are thought to be below normal, a suitable iron preparation should be given. In the patient mentioned in the first paragraph there was chronic or persistent loss of blood, making it necessary to give frequent transfusions of blood.

The factors known to be essential for starting up the blood-forming process or apparatus in the body include certain amino acids (proteins), minerals (iron, cobalt, copper, etc.) and vitamins, especially members of the B group, particularly vitamin B12, the great blood builder. Dr. Hall points out that just giving any brand of iron or any amount of iron to build up the blood is not scientific.

The treatment of what is called nutritional anemia depends upon whether the deficiency is due to chronic blood loss, inadequate intake of iron, or not getting sufficient minerals. The main requirement is to replace the deficit by administering iron in suitable form. The suitable form of iron in most cases is ferrous salts to be taken by mouth in adequate dosage (1 to 2 Gm. daily). The ferrous salts is the most popular method of administering iron today.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA—When first publicity was given in the fall of 1945 to the men who had made the atomic bomb, interest centered on the then practically unknown young University of California physicist, Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

He had headed the Los Alamos, N. M., laboratory where the first three atomic bombs had been put together to win the war.

No one was allowed to see him there. He had to talk to visitors through the gate. But he was allowed to go down to Sandia, N.M., when the U. S. press was first taken to the proving ground to see the crater made by the first test bomb.

When this reporter asked Dr. Oppenheimer what he wanted to do next, he said he wanted "to go some place and run a lunchroom." After three years of the most intense mental strain, he was terribly tired. He wanted to get as far away from atomic bombs and killing as he possibly could.

If Dr. Oppenheimer had done just that, he would probably not be in the predicament he finds himself in today, with his loyalty under investigation and the top secrets of his government—about which he knows more than perhaps anyone else—denied him by the President to whom he was a confidential adviser.

Of course Dr. Oppenheimer couldn't forget the whole atomic thing that he and his associates had unleashed. He couldn't go off to run a hot-dog stand where there were no worries and no problems greater than the supply of buns and catsup, mustard or onions.

Dr. Oppenheimer was all wrapped up in the future of the atom. He was destined to play an important part in the development of atomic science. He had to see this thing through.

Nine years ago all the young scientists who had worked on the atom bomb had a great wrestling match with their consciences. Had they done right in releasing this great force to kill? Scientists are dedicated to make life better—not to destroying it.

Scientists are primarily humanists, Dr. Oppenheimer emphasized in that lunch-time interview in an army mess hall in the New Mexico desert, nine years ago. People were inclined to forget that scientists were humanists, he said.

Scientists aren't interested in the things they do in a narrow sense. It is the effect of what they do on humanity and everyday life that counts.

It was the belief that nuclear fission could be made a constructive force which kept Dr. Oppenheimer and all the other young scientists at work on further research. If this had not been so, all of them might have wished that they had failed in their first attempts to split the atom.

This background seems worth recalling now to recapture the spirit of the scientific mind shortly after birth of atomic energy. It may also explain in some degree why some scientists wanted to delay the decision to develop the still more powerful hydrogen super bomb.

At this time, no useful, practical application of the hydrogen bomb force is known. That may come later. But today the hydrogen bomb is only an instrument of death and destruction.

Remembering that scientists are humanists, what one of them or what individual with any degree of learning, or literacy, would like to take full responsibility for unleashing this killer?

Would not anyone knowing its potentialities urge a delay to think this thing through and be sure the answer was right? After all, a few months are as a mere second in the perpetual clock of creation and unending history.

Practical politics and the certain knowledge that the Russians would develop the hydrogen bomb if American scientists did not, would, of course, rule out any such philosophic consideration.

But these thoughts may help understand a great scientist who today needs understanding. And anyone who does not grant him that understanding puts himself in the class of a Hitler or a Mussolini who drove from Europe such men as Einstein, Szilard, Fermi, and all the other refugees who really fathered atomic science in free America.

Most Persons Have Wrong Conceptions of Communist Goals, Is Contention

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 21—Is the Communist conspiracy inside the United States succeeding? The answer to this $64 question is really the most important fact to be ascertained in American life today.

Before any information on the subject—as gathered by trained investigators and undercover agents and given in testimony by former Communists—can be analyzed, it is important to sweep away the erroneous conceptions which are widely held by people throughout this country as to what are actually the Communist objectives.

First of all, it may come as a surprise to many persons to learn that the prime purpose of the Communist conspiracy is not to convert America to communism or to bring in some form of anti-capitalist totalitarianism. This could be an ultimate purpose, but it is by no means a part of today's tactics. Nor is the aid "to promote friction and discord," as so many Americans have often expressed it. That is incidental and not at all primary.

Then what is all the shouting about? The truth is that the Communist conspiracy, with 25,000 full-time agents concentrated in key spots throughout the United States, is aimed at influencing today—this month or this year—the negation of specific policies which, if adopted, can thwart the policies of the government of the Soviet Union.

Some of the policy objectives of the Soviet at the moment, as transmitted to its agents in America, are these:

1. To bring about a breakdown to the economic blockade of the Communist countries, especially on machinery and strategic goods. Considerable effort is being expended through propaganda generally and through carefully placed pressure upon legislators and officials here and abroad to bring about the resumption on a wide scale of east-west trade.

2. To break down the system of congressional investigations so that the 25,000 agents and their contacts inside government will be able to operate more effectively in influencing American policy. This has been for more than three years now the basic reason for the persistent campaign against what the communists from the start have termed "McCarthyism." The articles and headlines in the "Daily Worker" are the best guide to the instructions sent to Communist agents throughout America. Long before many non-Communist organizations and persons took up the fight against congressional inquiries, the "Daily Worker" had manifested an almost fanatical hysteria about the Wisconsin senator. For three years hardly a day has gone by without an attack on the congressional investigating system and on the Wisconsin senator as well as on the chairmen of all other committees in the House and Senate involved in exposing Communist activities. It's a basic objective.

3. To disparage and perhaps cause a breakdown in the "new look," which is the latest military plan of the United States. To accomplish this, arguments have been persistently promoted to the effect that the H-bomb must be outlawed. Yet everyone here in government familiar with the "new look" knows that, if the H-bomb is outlawed, the whole "new look" strategy will have to be revised. Ground armies like those of Russia would then be supreme and the draft of American boys would become more severe.

4. To discredit the "massive retaliation" policy of Secretary Dulles. Moscow was a little slow in starting the ball rolling on this one, but now it is gathering momentum, though the primary dependence of the Communists on frustrating that policy lies in Great Britain, where, with the aid of sympathetic persons in the radical wing of the Labor party, the subject has been successfully agitated in the hope of blocking through the London government the policy which America has proclaimed.

Only a few of the objectives of the Soviet conspiracy can be presented here today, but they are concrete illustrations of what the Communist agents are working on at the moment.

What makes the problem so baffling is that there are many loyal, sincere, patriotic Americans who have taken or may take exactly the same positions on public policy conscientiously and without having been influenced in the slightest to adopt those points of view by any known intermediaries or contacts from the Communist conspiracy. Indeed, the strategy of the Communist agents is to watch for the natural emergence of viewpoints here and there that could be helpful to them, and then to furnish the momentum and pressure to carry those policies on to greater and greater influence.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 20—A great political scandal has been whooped up over charges that David Schine was excused from a few hours' KP, and was shown other trivial favors.

The purpose of this is to demolish Senator Joe McCarthy and frustrate his campaign against Communists, including Communists who got commissions in the army, and those bureaucrats who permitted this.

But the dramatic fact stands out that the same democratic politicians and the same giant papers and radio chains and sponsors which express horror at this, were absolutely mute when disgraceful offenses of giant magnitude were exposed in connection with the war "careers" of two proteges of Eleanor Roosevelt.

I have exposed the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt by stealth got a safe, soft job at Pensacola Naval Air Station for her friend and protege, Lieut. Com. Earl Miller, who had been sergeant of the governor's guard at Albany, N. Y., when Roosevelt was governor. Miller later got a similar break at Mitchel Field, L. I., close to Manhattan. Mrs. Roosevelt then was living much of her time in an apartment in Greenwich village.

Now I will tell you about interference on behalf of Joe Lash, another "protege" of the Empress Eleanor, who had been turned down for a free commission in the navy because the Dies Committee refused to withdraw its objections. Robert Stripling, the chief investigator of the committee, was persecuted with ferocious malice and soon afterward the "Communist desk" of naval intelligence, in New York, was abolished and its records were scattered, if not destroyed. This "desk" kept track of Communists and headed off some who tried to get commissions.

Humphrey Doulens, a young reporter who made captain on his merits, told of an incident on a drill field on Collins avenue, Miami Beach, soon after Lash finally was inducted.

Mr. Doulens said Eleanor drove up while Lash was standing a routine formation and asked to call him out of ranks because she wanted to say "good-bye." Doulens said the captain called, "Private Lash, report—" to the White House car and that Lash abruptly bolted forward. Doulens said a platoon sergeant roared at him to get back and fall out in a military manner.

Now here is official information on Lash's case from the record of a special committee of the House Committee on Military Affairs, dated May 22, 1945. The data was provided by the same John J. McCloy, assistant secretary of war, who insisted that a Communist need not necessarily be disloyal to the United States. Opponents of McCloy's position derisively mocked a proposition that a man who was only 51 per cent loyal was a patriot by a plurality of two per cent.

McCloy's letter said Lash finally got a commission as a second lieutenant on May 18, 1945, and was assigned to the quartermaster corps.

"He attended this (quartermaster) school in compliance with specific instructions received by the War Department from President Roosevelt," McCloy's letter said.

Lash was inducted on April 21, 1942. He served as a "weather observer" and "forecaster" at Miami Beach, Washington and two other stateside stations.

From May, 1943, he served in the 17th "Weather Squadron" in the South Pacific, flying 102½ hours. A contemporary news item reported that he had been decorated because on one or more of these forays he was in territory where his ship might have been attacked.

At an unspecified time between May, 1943, and September, 1944, his commanding officer "detailed him to be in charge of the information and education program of that command."

Thus Lash at last got a crack at the minds of American soldiers who had no alternative. McCloy did not state whether anyone had butted in to make the C.O. of the "17th Weather Squadron" give Lash this propaganda job.

In September, 1944, Lash got a transfer to a school at Lexington, Va., for a course in "information and education." But when he applied for admission to an officer candidate school, the director of the Information and Education Division refused on the ground that he "did not conform to the type desired for orientation work."

The very day that that decision was made, Dec. 29, 1944, President Roosevelt issued a peremptory order that Lash be admitted to the school unless there were other objections than his past pro-Communist activities as cited by Dies.

McCloy now fades into a smokescreen of wordage but makes it plain that this insignificant Housepet's case was taken to the "War Department level." He was granted his commission in the QM Corps on May 18, 1945.

During his trick in the Pacific, Eleanor Roosevelt flew out to visit him, using untold quantities of precious gasoline and the services of six officers, including a personal press-agent with the rank of major. Fighter planes and flyers were diverted from fighting operations to convoy her on this sentimental journey. A pretext was made that she was on a "mission" to inspire our brave lads to greater sacrifices.

On Guadalcanal, Pat Robinson, of the International News Service, asked a wounded soldier in a hospital how he would like to see the wife of the President. The GI said: "I would a dam sight rather see my own."

Another patient, badly shaken by fighting with the 37th Division on New Georgia island, wrote that these wounded "naturally were thinking about their wives and gals like Betty Grable."

"When who shows up but Eleanor," his letter said. "I don't remember any remarks like 'Gosh, there's Eleanor,' but I sure remember a few others."

LEGENDARY EDITOR

Every profession has its legends and its legendary figures. Walter Howey, who died recently at the age of 72, was a fantastic character in an era in American journalism when fantastic characters were so common they scarcely attracted attention.

He had a long career which extended back to 1903 when he served a brief apprenticeship on a Chicago newspaper. He became a city editor, an exposer of graft and corruption, a managing editor of the New York Daily News. Millions of Americans saw the play and the movie "Front Page" which chronicled the adventures of the demon reporter "Hildy Johnson" and his rough, tough, hell-for-leather editor "Walter Burns." The character of Walter Burns was patterned after Howey, under whose tutelage the authors Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur served as reporters.

These "good old days" in the newspaper business were not so good as they are sometimes painted. Reporting today is far more accurate, faster, more efficient than it was then. But out of the sensational era many of the modern methods of handling news were developed.

Howey was more than merely a sensationalist, however. He is credited with publishing the first veterans' column in any newspaper, the first medical column and many others. He also played a big part in developing devices for transmitting pictures by the use of a sound-photo system. For his real accomplishments, as well as the legends which surrounded him, he is assured of a place in any history of the newspaper business in our day.

NOT GUILTY

At a Senate committee hearing on copyright laws, four prominent authors, including Carl Sandburg, appeared to ask for a universal copyright law. In the course of their testimony one author indicated that he thought all authors were indignant over the present state of affairs. Senator Hickenlooper replied that he thought newspapermen and authors were always indignant.

It may be that the Senator, in lumping novelists and newspapermen together, is passing an injustice upon newspapermen. We have always suspected that some of our colleagues had dispositions which could stand improvement; but it gives us pause to think that someone might describe us as perpetually indignant. To us it seems like a clear case of guilt by association.

The Senator places newspapermen in a bad spot. Imagine the wives of the men who toil in newspaper offices taking up the charge. A newsman complains that the meat is too well-done and his spouse shrugs her shoulders and says "nothing pleases you. Didn't that senator say you were always indignant?"

No, Senator, newspapermen have their fair share of irritability. But some of the dourest newspapermen we have known have seemed like smiling babes compared to Senators whipping up righteous anger against sin.

UNDERDOG'S DAY

Little Ben Hogan has pulled off so many golfing miracles we have come to expect them in endless procession. There must inevitably be some disappointment, therefore, when he fails to capture a big tournament, as he did the Masters' at Augusta, Ga.

But folks who like to cheer for the underdog can toss off a few hurrahs for the man who beat Hogan in a playoff by a single stroke—Sam Snead, one of the real pile drivers in the business.

Slammin' Sammy has been knocking at the door of the throne room so long his knuckles are raw. Year after year, he never seemed to be able to take the big ones he wanted. So it is pretty good balm for the compassionate souls among us that Snead finally did crack through.

THE FARM PROBLEM

On thinks of the American farmer as the most individualistic of individuals, the backbone of conservatism in this country. During the past two decades, the American farmer has become as highly organized as labor, is represented by a number of huge organizations which differ in principle and which quarrel with each other, each seeking to establish a particular position in Congress.

The principal quarrel at this moment is over price supports, whether they should be rigid or flexible.

Taking three items, butter, cheese and milk, it is possible to see how great the burden is upon the Government. During one week in March about 120,000,000 pounds of these products were dumped upon the Government:

Estimated Stocks in Merchandising Position 1/		Estimated Total Stocks 2/
March 24	March 31	March 24	March 31
	Butter	(Lbs.)
253,798,000	273,875,000	328,129,000	364,170,000
	Cheese	(Lbs.)
238,151,000	366,880,000	339,172,000	483,108,000
	Milk (Dried)	(Lbs.)
413,826,000	484,600,000	539,244,000	598,795,000

1/ Estimated CCC stocks which are in store and not committed for sale or movement.

2/ Estimated total stocks owned by CCC, including stocks shown in column one, plus commitments to purchase less commitments to sell.

The largest farm organization is the Grange, established in 1867, now having more than 8,000 local organizations which include 850,000 members. The Grange is organized in 37 states. It has been generally for flexible price supports, but has somewhat weakened recently and tends to favor the two-price system on wheat.

The American Farm Bureau Federation was organized in 1919 and now has 1,591,777 members. They are organized in 48 states. This is probably the most influential politically of the farm groups. Most of the state groups are in favor of flexible price supports; 12 states are opposed to the flexible price supports. The national organization is in favor of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's farm program.

The National Farmers Union was organized in 1902 and claims a membership of about 235,000. It used to be strongest in the one-crop areas, such as the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, but is now growing rapidly in such states as Oklahoma, Arkansas and some others.

The Farmers Union is for government guarantees of 100 per cent of parity on all farm products. They claim credit for the present farm policy and oppose Secretary Benson, who is trying to change it. It is interesting to note that the Farmers Union has absorbed several important personalities of the Truman Administration, such as former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, protagonist of the Brannan Plan, who is now its counsel, and Leon Keyserling, former chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, who is a special assistant to President James Patton.

The literature of the Farmers Union differs from the other organizations because it would seem to be a continuation of the 19th Century Populist movement. In its official history, describing the exploitation of the farmers by the "robber barons" and the railroads, they say:

"As a result of this situation, the farmers united and formed class organizations and political movements. They founded the Grange which had as its principal objective the destruction of monopoly. They formed the Greenback Movement to cheapen the currency and thus increase the value of their products. They formed the Silver Movement for the same reason, and they united in the Populist Party to elect men to redress their grievances and enact laws to carry out their demands.

"But all of these protest groups fell by the wayside. . . ."

There are a number of other farm organizations such as the National Council of Farmers Cooperatives and many special commodity groups. All farm organizations favor some type of price supports, rigid or flexible. There is inadequate coordination even when they agree on a program. The Farmers Union often cooperates with the C.I.O. on farmer-labor concepts.

That Body of Yours

MODERN TREATMENT OF THE ANEMIAS

A close friend of mine was greatly interested in a mutual friend who was in the hospital, a patient with anemia which, unfortunately, was of a chronic nature—chronic anemia. He was amazed at how quickly the patient's blood (the iron in it) was brought to normal with transfusions of blood.

In the Merck Report, Dr. Byron E. Hall, Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine, Stanford University School of Medicine, San Francisco, states that anemia may be caused by insufficient or faulty blood production, by blood loss, or by excessive blood destruction. Fortunately, once the cause of the anemia has been ascertained, there are relatively few cases for which modern treatment will not prove effective.

The immediate aim of the treatment is to fight shock by (a) controlling the bleeding and (b) restoring the blood volume to normal as rapidly as possible by transfusing the patient with whole blood or, if not immediately available, with blood plasma or normal saline solution. Unless the patient is in general poor condition, that is in the absence of pre-existing anemia, the iron (hemoglobin) stores in the body should be adequate for restoration of a normal blood condition.

However, in a patient giving a history of bleeding prior to the present attack, in whom the blood reserves are thought to be below normal, a suitable iron preparation should be given. In the patient mentioned in the first paragraph there was chronic or persistent loss of blood, making it necessary to give frequent transfusions of blood.

The factors known to be essential for starting up the blood-forming process or apparatus in the body include certain amino acids (proteins), minerals (iron, cobalt, copper, etc.) and vitamins, especially members of the B group, particularly vitamin B12, the great blood builder. Dr. Hall points out that just giving any brand of iron or any amount of iron to build up the blood is not scientific.

The treatment of what is called nutritional anemia depends upon whether the deficiency is due to chronic blood loss, inadequate intake of iron, or not getting sufficient minerals. The main requirement is to replace the deficit by administering iron in suitable form. The suitable form of iron in most cases is ferrous salts to be taken by mouth in adequate dosage (1 to 2 Gm. daily). The ferrous salts is the most popular method of administering iron today.

Most Persons Have Wrong Conceptions of Communist Goals, Is Contention

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 21—Is the Communist conspiracy inside the United States succeeding? The answer to this $64 question is really the most important fact to be ascertained in American life today.

Before any information on the subject—as gathered by trained investigators and undercover agents and given in testimony by former Communists—can be analyzed, it is important to sweep away the erroneous conceptions which are widely held by people throughout this country as to what are actually the Communist objectives.

First of all, it may come as a surprise to many persons to learn that the prime purpose of the Communist conspiracy is not to convert America to communism or to bring in some form of anti-capitalist totalitarianism. This could be an ultimate purpose, but it is by no means a part of today's tactics. Nor is the aid "to promote friction and discord," as so many Americans have often expressed it. That is incidental and not at all primary.

Then what is all the shouting about? The truth is that the Communist conspiracy, with 25,000 full-time agents concentrated in key spots throughout the United States, is aimed at influencing today—this month or this year—the negation of specific policies which, if adopted, can thwart the policies of the government of the Soviet Union.

Some of the policy objectives of the Soviet at the moment, as transmitted to its agents in America, are these:

1. To bring about a breakdown to the economic blockade of the Communist countries, especially on machinery and strategic goods. Considerable effort is being expended through propaganda generally and through carefully placed pressure upon legislators and officials here and abroad to bring about the resumption on a wide scale of east-west trade.

2. To break down the system of congressional investigations so that the 25,000 agents and their contacts inside government will be able to operate more effectively in influencing American policy. This has been for more than three years now the basic reason for the persistent campaign against what the communists from the start have termed "McCarthyism." The articles and headlines in the "Daily Worker" are the best guide to the instructions sent to Communist agents throughout America. Long before many non-Communist organizations and persons took up the fight against congressional inquiries, the "Daily Worker" had manifested an almost fanatical hysteria about the Wisconsin senator. For three years hardly a day has gone by without an attack on the congressional investigating system and on the Wisconsin senator as well as on the chairmen of all other committees in the House and Senate involved in exposing Communist activities. It's a basic objective.

3. To disparage and perhaps cause a breakdown in the "new look," which is the latest military plan of the United States. To accomplish this, arguments have been persistently promoted to the effect that the H-bomb must be outlawed. Yet everyone here in government familiar with the "new look" knows that, if the H-bomb is outlawed, the whole "new look" strategy will have to be revised. Ground armies like those of Russia would then be supreme and the draft of American boys would become more severe.

4. To discredit the "massive retaliation" policy of Secretary Dulles. Moscow was a little slow in starting the ball rolling on this one, but now it is gathering momentum, though the primary dependence of the Communists on frustrating that policy lies in Great Britain, where, with the aid of sympathetic persons in the radical wing of the Labor party, the subject has been successfully agitated in the hope of blocking through the London government the policy which America has proclaimed.

Only a few of the objectives of the Soviet conspiracy can be presented here today, but they are concrete illustrations of what the Communist agents are working on at the moment.

What makes the problem so baffling is that there are many loyal, sincere, patriotic Americans who have taken or may take exactly the same positions on public policy conscientiously and without having been influenced in the slightest to adopt those points of view by any known intermediaries or contacts from the Communist conspiracy. Indeed, the strategy of the Communist agents is to watch for the natural emergence of viewpoints here and there that could be helpful to them, and then to furnish the momentum and pressure to carry those policies on to greater and greater influence.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 20—A great political scandal has been whooped up over charges that David Schine was excused from a few hours' KP, and was shown other trivial favors.

The purpose of this is to demolish Senator Joe McCarthy and frustrate his campaign against Communists, including Communists who got commissions in the army, and those bureaucrats who permitted this.

But the dramatic fact stands out that the same democratic politicians and the same giant papers and radio chains and sponsors which express horror at this, were absolutely mute when disgraceful offenses of giant magnitude were exposed in connection with the war "careers" of two proteges of Eleanor Roosevelt.

I have exposed the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt by stealth got a safe, soft job at Pensacola Naval Air Station for her friend and protege, Lieut. Com. Earl Miller, who had been sergeant of the governor's guard at Albany, N. Y., when Roosevelt was governor. Miller later got a similar break at Mitchel Field, L. I., close to Manhattan. Mrs. Roosevelt then was living much of her time in an apartment in Greenwich village.

Now I will tell you about interference on behalf of Joe Lash, another "protege" of the Empress Eleanor, who had been turned down for a free commission in the navy because the Dies Committee refused to withdraw its objections. Robert Stripling, the chief investigator of the committee, was persecuted with ferocious malice and soon afterward the "Communist desk" of naval intelligence, in New York, was abolished and its records were scattered, if not destroyed. This "desk" kept track of Communists and headed off some who tried to get commissions.

Humphrey Doulens, a young reporter who made captain on his merits, told of an incident on a drill field on Collins avenue, Miami Beach, soon after Lash finally was inducted.

Mr. Doulens said Eleanor drove up while Lash was standing a routine formation and asked to call him out of ranks because she wanted to say "good-bye." Doulens said the captain called, "Private Lash, report—" to the White House car and that Lash abruptly bolted forward. Doulens said a platoon sergeant roared at him to get back and fall out in a military manner.

Now here is official information on Lash's case from the record of a special committee of the House Committee on Military Affairs, dated May 22, 1945. The data was provided by the same John J. McCloy, assistant secretary of war, who insisted that a Communist need not necessarily be disloyal to the United States. Opponents of McCloy's position derisively mocked a proposition that a man who was only 51 per cent loyal was a patriot by a plurality of two per cent.

McCloy's letter said Lash finally got a commission as a second lieutenant on May 18, 1945, and was assigned to the quartermaster corps.

"He attended this (quartermaster) school in compliance with specific instructions received by the War Department from President Roosevelt," McCloy's letter said.

Lash was inducted on April 21, 1942. He served as a "weather observer" and "forecaster" at Miami Beach, Washington and two other stateside stations.

From May, 1943, he served in the 17th "Weather Squadron" in the South Pacific, flying 102½ hours. A contemporary news item reported that he had been decorated because on one or more of these forays he was in territory where his ship might have been attacked.

At an unspecified time between May, 1943, and September, 1944, his commanding officer "detailed him to be in charge of the information and education program of that command."

Thus Lash at last got a crack at the minds of American soldiers who had no alternative. McCloy did not state whether anyone had butted in to make the C.O. of the "17th Weather Squadron" give Lash this propaganda job.

In September, 1944, Lash got a transfer to a school at Lexington, Va., for a course in "information and education." But when he applied for admission to an officer candidate school, the director of the Information and Education Division refused on the ground that he "did not conform to the type desired for orientation work."

The very day that that decision was made, Dec. 29, 1944, President Roosevelt issued a peremptory order that Lash be admitted to the school unless there were other objections than his past pro-Communist activities as cited by Dies.

McCloy now fades into a smokescreen of wordage but makes it plain that this insignificant Housepet's case was taken to the "War Department level." He was granted his commission in the QM Corps on May 18, 1945.

During his trick in the Pacific, Eleanor Roosevelt flew out to visit him, using untold quantities of precious gasoline and the services of six officers, including a personal press-agent with the rank of major. Fighter planes and flyers were diverted from fighting operations to convoy her on this sentimental journey. A pretext was made that she was on a "mission" to inspire our brave lads to greater sacrifices.

On Guadalcanal, Pat Robinson, of the International News Service, asked a wounded soldier in a hospital how he would like to see the wife of the President. The GI said: "I would a dam sight rather see my own."

Another patient, badly shaken by fighting with the 37th Division on New Georgia island, wrote that these wounded "naturally were thinking about their wives and gals like Betty Grable."

"When who shows up but Eleanor," his letter said, "I don't remember any remarks like 'Gosh, there's Eleanor,' but I sure remember a few others."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Little Mrs. Fixit

Sometimes, as Philip Wylie is fond of telling us, a mother confuses her love for her son with her love for herself. I mention this because I recently received a story from a housewife in Montreal which seems to document Mr. Wylie's anti-mom thesis . . .

For many years, according to my Canadian contributor, a widow named Caroline Haskell lived in a small house in Quebec City with her only son, George, a salesman by profession.

As might be expected, George had run around with a lot of girls, but for one reason or another he never took any of them seriously. In each instance, it seems, the "one reason or another" was furnished by his loving mother: Viola was too flighty, Charlotte too mercenary, and as for Christine—well, the less said about that one the better. And so on and so forth.

Last year, however, George, a balding 35, began to steady-date an unusually pretty girl named Peggy, and when he started to talk about settling down, his mother realized the situation called for strong measures.

The following day she had Peggy over for lunch and a friendly chat.

"I'm so happy you like George," she told the girl. "I'm all he has and, Lord knows, I'm not getting any younger. It's time he married and had somebody like you to look after him when those attacks come on."

"What attacks?" asked Peggy.

Mrs. Haskell seemed flustered. "Oh dear," she said. "I suppose I shouldn't have mentioned them. They don't come very often. His father had the same sickness and lived until he was well past fifty."

That did it. Exit Peggy . . . .

Around Christmas of last year, George brought another girl home, a pert-faced brunette named Ella he had met at a ski camp in the Laurentians. From the way she looked at George, Mrs. Haskell immediately sensed trouble.

A few days later she got the bad news she had been expecting.

"I aim to marry Ella," said George. "That's is, if she'll have me."

Next afternoon the girl was in Mrs. Haskell's parlor, having tea and chatting with her.

"There's no one I'd rather have for a daughter-in-law," said George's mother. "Still, I think it's only fair you should know—if George hasn't already told you—about his attacks."

The widow went on to tell Ella, in detail, what the attacks were like and how to deal with them. She finished by assuring the girl they were nothing to worry about if someone was on hand when the seizures came....

That Saturday morning, George walked into the house with Ella on his arm.

"Congratulate us, mom," he said. "We just got married. Talk to Ella while I pack a bag. We're going back to the ski camp for our honeymoon."

While George was upstairs, the girl took Mrs. Haskell's hand in hers.

"You did a wonderful thing when you told me the truth about George," she said. "If you hadn't, I wouldn't have dared to marry him."

"I don't understand," said Mrs. Haskell.

"It wouldn't have been fair," said Ella. "You see, my mother had fits of manic depression, and my grandmother died in an asylum. When you told me about George's sickness, it was like a reprieve. He was the first man I felt I could marry because he needed me to lean on as much as I needed him."

Ex-POW Testifies Dickenson Pushed Ailing Comrade

Washington, April 21 (AP)—An ex-prisoner-of-war said today Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson pushed a sick POW down some stairs after the ailing man had asked Dickenson for food.

This incident was described by Staff Sgt. John A. Davis of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who stared at Dickenson with unmasked hate during his appearance in the witness chair. It was the third day of Dickenson's court-martial on charges of collaborating with the Chinese Communists while a POW in Korea.

Davis said Dickenson, 23, and from Cracker's Neck, Va., worked at the sick compound as a cook at the Red POW camp at Pyoktong along the Yalu river and "I saw him trade off chow for tobacco and candy."

Saw Chow in Pot

At one point, Davis said he saw a sick POW go up to Dickenson "and ask for chow. Dickenson said there was no more. I, personally, saw some chow in the chow pot."

The witness said there was "a little argument" and he saw Dickenson push the man down three stairs. "The man's legs were paralyzed for a day," Davis said.

Guy Emery, counsel for the defense, drew from Davis a concession that he could not remember clearly the incidents of chow trading.

Emery asked the short, stocky sergeant: "Was it at this time that you began to hate the accused?"

"Yes, sir," Davis said.

"And you still do?"

"Yes, sir."

Walker Is Jailed For Cleaver Swing

Dallas Walker, 67, of 115 Broadway, who was arrested last night on a third degree assault charge, for allegedly wielding a meat cleaver uncomfortably close to Lewis Johnson, 151 Abeel street, was sentenced to 10 days in jail when he appeared today before City Judge Raymond J. Mino.

Jennie Robinson, 62, also of 115 Broadway, was arrested on a public intoxication charge, and was given a suspended sentence today.

Charges He Was Struck

Officers Charles McCullough and John Crespino were dispatched to the house when police headquarters was notified at 10:45 p. m. Jennie Robinson was arrested by Special Officer Benjamin Osterhoudt and Walker was arrested by Johnson.

Information indicated that Johnson charged Walker with striking him with the cleaver on the left hand, but officials indicated today that Johnson showed no noticeable effects resulting from the incident, which, police said, took place at the home of the defendant.

Points to Location of New Stairs

Louis Kantrowitz, representing the Uptown Business Men's Association, points to location where new stairs will be built for shoppers leaving their vehicles in the 1,500-car parking lot, only two minutes away from the large buying area. (Freeman photo)

Uptown Kingston Claims Answer to Parking Problem

Throughout the country one of the most discussed problems is that of where to park in business areas. In some communities business is migrating to the rural areas where ample parking is available.

This problem in the Kingston uptown business area has been practically solved by the foresight and planning of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association which about two years ago began to make plans for converting the large area just off North Front street into a free parking area.

Shortly before Christmas in 1953 work started a few weeks prior was completed and space for parking over 1,000 cars was thrown open to the public. Since then additional areas have been opened until today there is parking space for 1,500 cars within two or three minutes walk of the business area.

"Some towns would give a right arm for parking facilities of this kind," said Louis Kantrowitz, chairman of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association.

To Shorten Walk

The next step in the program to make parking facilities even more accessible to the public is to erect a stairway from the parking ground level to give access to North Front street near the junction of Crown street. This will cut down the walking distance from the parking area to the business section by half.

Plans have been prepared by Augustus Brinnier, civil engineer who directed the building of the parking area, for a two level, easy grade access stairway from the parking level to the rear of the Samuel Barnett property at 67 North Front street. This stairway will be four feet wide with two elevations, each of about 15 feet rise and will be covered to protect it from the elements. It will be lighted at night.

Mid-Way Access

The stairway will give access to the parking lot about mid-way between the Fair street extension entrance and the Converse street entrance. This will permit drivers either to discharge passengers at the parking level and adjacent to the stairway or discharge passengers on North Front street and permit the driver to gain access to the street by means of the stairs.

Already the business people of the area have contributed some $12,000 toward the parking fund and it is estimated an additional $3,500 is now required to complete the work and erect the stairway.

Need Contributions

A letter has been sent out to business people of the area asking for contributions to complete the work. It is the hope of the officials of the organization that the needed fund for completion of the stairway will be forthcoming quickly and that additional money will be available to clear up the bank loan taken out when the parking grounds was built. Local banks have gone along with the movement and loaned money to provide the parking facilities and the association officials feel that the time has arrived when this loan must be liquidated.

In addition to erection of the stairway from the parking area to North Front street, a paved right-of-way over the Barnett property for pedestrians will be included.

It has been estimated by one of the officials of the Association that a contribution of $1 per foot frontage from the business firms in the uptown area would bring in sufficient funds to clear up present indebtedness, provide funds for completion of the stairway and give Kingston shoppers one of the finest and most accessible free parking lots to be found anywhere.

Plans to proceed with the stairway have been completed and work will begin as soon as sufficient funds are available.

Nixon Gives Views

Cincinnati, April 21 (AP)—Vice President Nixon said last night the aim of the Eisenhower administration in Indochina "is to hold it without a war involving the United States if we can." He left unanswered what the United States would do specifically if Indochina could not be held without direct American intervention. Nixon commented last Friday that the United States might have to send armies to Indochina as a last-ditch effort in the unlikely event the French withdrew their troops. His remarks, delivered "off-the-record" to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, caused a congressional furore.

Speaker of the evening will be Edward Papantonio, New York State Department Commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Fordham professor.

ANPA Head Says

ume was $68,400,000. Last year it was $688,700,000—a growth of 907 per cent."

He said television had developed almost incredibly, with the number of TV set owners rising from 3,950,000 in 1949 to 27,500,000 today—an increase of 596 per cent. The number of TV stations, he said, has increased in the same time from 98 to 344, or 251 per cent.

Permanency Big Factor

Biggers held that newspapers still had the advantage in that they are a printed medium that could be read at leisure and in that they formed a permanent record.

A report by the ANPA's Federal Laws Committee hit at what it called increasing efforts to prohibit and regulate advertising.

"A trend which should be of great concern to newspaper executives," it said, "is the increasing effort to prohibit and regulate advertising of various kinds by legislative mandate or bureau orders.

"Many different interests are involved in these efforts: The federal government; professional organizations seeking to restrict and prohibit advertising by people in and out of their profession; prohibitionists seeking to ban liquor advertising; and other special interests."

Misleading Ads Scored

The committee, headed by J. Hale Steinman, publisher, Lancaster, Pa., Intelligencer-Journal, said:

"False and misleading advertising should be and is now prohibited and punishable. Proper advertising should be permitted for proper services and commodities."

The committee declared further:

"It is a strange commentary that these persons who regard advertising with such horror do not have the same shrinking when it comes to publicity for which there is no charge.

"Publicity comes with maddening regularity from some of the very associations which are striving hardest to bring about prohibition of advertising or its drastic regulation. So it cannot be public mention that is abhorent but apparently only public mention when paid for."

In a report on newsprint, the ANPA said:

"Newsprint supply is adequate for present needs, but supply and demand in 1953 were in close balance and there seems to be no reason to believe that 1954 will show a different picture."

The report said producers estimate that newsprint consumption in the United States in 1954 will be 6,300,000 tons. Approximately 4,980,000 tons is expected from Canada; 1,140,000 from United States mills; and 180,000 tons from overseas.

Roosevelt Plan Rejected by Wife

Los Angeles, April 21 (AP)—James Roosevelt's estranged wife has rejected his compromise offer of a divorce and half his property.

"Just a publicity stunt," was the way Mrs. Romelle Roosevelt descriped yesterday her husband's proposal to avert trial of a separate maintenance action in which she makes sensational charges of infidelity.

Roosevelt is seeking the Democratic congressional nomination in the 26th California District at the June 8 primary. His latest proposal in his domestic controversy drew this comment from Arthur E. Schifferman, Mrs. Roosevelt's attorney:

"Apparently Mr. Roosevelt prefers to make emotional appeals to public opinion rather than to leave this matter for judicial determination."

Schifferman also said Roosevelt's offer "is designed to attempt to prejudice the court and to arouse public opinion and sympathy in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf."

The eldest son of the late President now has two matters to be heard in court April 30: A petition amending his own separate maintenance complaint so that it will ask for a divorce instead; a petition to have stricken from the record a letter signed by him in 1945, in which he listed nine infidelities.

Roosevelt has denied any misconduct.

His desire for a divorce is not new, but his wife has never wanted one, said Schifferman, adding:

"She filed her action for separate maintenance, and she sees no reason for becoming a party to any collusive divorce arrangement...."

Advises 2 Counties Have Radio Ties In Case of Fires

Dutchess County Fire Coordinator Otto Friske, who addressed the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night in Modena on two-way radio, said he had been authorized by the Dutchess County Board of Supervisors to make a bid for the system in Ulster county before its board of supervisors.

Friske said he will recommend that the Ulster board approve the system so that Dutchess and Ulster communities will be equipped to offer mutual aid protection to each other with maximum efficiency. He explained that efficiency as it is now working in his county.

The firement were guests of the town of Plattekill and Gardiner firemen at Hasbrouck Hall, Modena. About 125 attended.

Seven fire companies and three musical units have already signed up to participate in the annual parade in conjunction with the convention next July 22, 23 and 24 at New Paltz the convention committee reported. The parade will be held at 5 p. m. on the final day.

The committee arranging for the dinner to honor Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, of this city, in May reported a large sale of tickets to date. Today was announced as the deadline for the sale of tickets to companies which were limited to four each, and now firemen may apply individually for tickets through Joseph Fassbender, 87 Roosevelt avenue, Kingston, or through Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting adjourned in respect to the memory of Louis Hornbastel, secretary of the Rifton Fire Department, who died recently.

This problem in the Kingston uptown business area has been practically solved by the foresight and planning of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association which about two years ago began to make plans for converting the large area just off North Front street into a free parking area.

Shortly before Christmas in 1953 work started a few weeks prior was completed and space for parking over 1,000 cars was thrown open to the public. Since then additional areas have been opened until today there is parking space for 1,500 cars within two or three minutes walk of the business area.

"Some towns would give a right arm for parking facilities of this kind," said Louis Kantrowitz, chairman of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association.

To Shorten Walk

The next step in the program to make parking facilities even more accessible to the public is to erect a stairway from the parking ground level to give access to North Front street near the junction of Crown street. This will cut down the walking distance from the parking area to the business section by half.

Plans have been prepared by Augustus Brinnier, civil engineer who directed the building of the parking area, for a two level, easy grade access stairway from the parking level to the rear of the Samuel Barnett property at 67 North Front street. This stairway will be four feet wide with two elevations, each of about 15 feet rise and will be covered to protect it from the elements. It will be lighted at night.

Mid-Way Access

The stairway will give access to the parking lot about mid-way between the Fair street extension entrance and the Converse street entrance. This will permit drivers either to discharge passengers at the parking level and adjacent to the stairway or discharge passengers on North Front street and permit the driver to gain access to the street by means of the stairs.

Already the business people of the area have contributed some $12,000 toward the parking fund and it is estimated an additional $3,500 is now required to complete the work and erect the stairway.

Need Contributions

A letter has been sent out to business people of the area asking for contributions to complete the work. It is the hope of the officials of the organization that the needed fund for completion of the stairway will be forthcoming quickly and that additional money will be available to clear up the bank loan taken out when the parking grounds was built. Local banks have gone along with the movement and loaned money to provide the parking facilities and the association officials feel that the time has arrived when this loan must be liquidated.

In addition to erection of the stairway from the parking area to North Front street, a paved right-of-way over the Barnett property for pedestrians will be included.

It has been estimated by one of the officials of the Association that a contribution of $1 per foot frontage from the business firms in the uptown area would bring in sufficient funds to clear up present indebtedness, provide funds for completion of the stairway and give Kingston shoppers one of the finest and most accessible free parking lots to be found anywhere.

Plans to proceed with the stairway have been completed and work will begin as soon as sufficient funds are available.

Nixon Gives Views

Cincinnati, April 21 (AP) — Vice President Nixon said last night the aim of the Eisenhower administration in Indochina "is to hold it without a war involving the United States if we can." He left unanswered what the United States would do specifically if Indochina could not be held without direct American intervention. Nixon commented last Friday that the United States might have to send armies to Indochina as a last-ditch effort in the unlikely event the French withdrew their troops. His remarks, delivered "off-the-record" to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, caused a congressional furore.

ANPA Head Says

ume was $68,400,000. Last year it was $688,700,000—a growth of 907 per cent."

He said television had developed almost incredibly, with the number of TV set owners rising from 3,950,000 in 1949 to 27,500,000 today—an increase of 596 per cent. The number of TV stations, he said, has increased in the same time from 98 to 344, or 251 per cent.

Permanency Big Factor

Biggers held that newspapers still had the advantage in that they are a printed medium that could be read at leisure and in that they formed a permanent record.

A report by the ANPA's Federal Laws Committee hit at what it called increasing efforts to prohibit and regulate advertising.

"A trend which should be of great concern to newspaper executives," it said, "is the increasing effort to prohibit and regulate advertising of various kinds by legislative mandate or bureau orders.

"Many different interests are involved in these efforts: The federal government; professional organizations seeking to restrict and prohibit advertising by people in and out of their profession; prohibitionists seeking to ban liquor advertising; and other special interests."

Misleading Ads Scored

The committee, headed by J. Hale Steinman, publisher, Lancaster, Pa., Intelligencer-Journal, said:

"False and misleading advertising should be and is now prohibited and punishable. Proper advertising should be permitted for proper services and commodities."

The committee declared further:

"It is a strange commentary that these persons who regard advertising with such horror do not have the same shrinking when it comes to publicity for which there is no charge.

"Publicity comes with maddening regularity from some of the very associations which are striving hardest to bring about prohibition of advertising or its drastic regulation. So it cannot be public mention that is abhorent but apparently only public mention when paid for."

In a report on newsprint, the ANPA said:

"Newsprint supply is adequate for present needs, but supply and demand in 1953 were in close balance and there seems to be no reason to believe that 1954 will show a different picture."

The report said producers estimate that newsprint consumption in the United States in 1954 will be 6,300,000 tons. Approximately 4,980,000 tons is expected from Canada; 1,140,000 from United States mills; and 180,000 tons from overseas.

Roosevelt Plan Rejected by Wife

Los Angeles, April 21 (AP)—James Roosevelt's estranged wife has rejected his compromise offer of a divorce and half his property.

"Just a publicity stunt," was the way Mrs. Romelle Roosevelt descriped yesterday her husband's proposal to avert trial of a separate maintenance action in which she makes sensational charges of infidelity.

Roosevelt is seeking the Democratic congressional nomination in the 26th California District at the June 8 primary. His latest proposal in his domestic controversy drew this comment from Arthur E. Schifferman, Mrs. Roosevelt's attorney:

"Apparently Mr. Roosevelt prefers to make emotional appeals to public opinion rather than to leave this matter for judicial determination."

Schifferman also said Roosevelt's offer "is designed to attempt to prejudice the court and to arouse public opinion and sympathy in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf."

The eldest son of the late President now has two matters to be heard in court April 30: A petition amending his own separate maintenance complaint so that it will ask for a divorce instead; a petition to have stricken from the record a letter signed by him in 1945, in which he listed nine infidelities.

Roosevelt has denied any misconduct.

His desire for a divorce is not new, but his wife has never wanted one, said Schifferman, adding:

"She filed her action for separate maintenance, and she sees no reason for becoming a party to any collusive divorce arrangement...."

Advises 2 Counties Have Radio Ties In Case of Fires

Dutchess County Fire Coordinator Otto Friske, who addressed the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night in Modena on two-way radio, said he had been authorized by the Dutchess County Board of Supervisors to make a bid for the system in Ulster county before its board of supervisors.

Friske said he will recommend that the Ulster board approve the system so that Dutchess and Ulster communities will be equipped to offer mutual aid protection to each other with maximum efficiency. He explained that efficiency as it is now working in his county.

The firement were guests of the town of Plattekill and Gardiner firemen at Hasbrouck Hall, Modena. About 125 attended.

Seven fire companies and three musical units have already signed up to participate in the annual parade in conjunction with the convention next July 22, 23 and 24 at New Paltz the convention committee reported. The parade will be held at 5 p. m. on the final day.

The committee arranging for the dinner to honor Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, of this city, in May reported a large sale of tickets to date. Today was announced as the deadline for the sale of tickets to companies which were limited to four each, and now firemen may apply individually for tickets through Joseph Fassbender, 87 Roosevelt avenue, Kingston, or through Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting adjourned in respect to the memory of Louis Hornbastel, secretary of the Rifton Fire Department, who died recently.

Nurse and Doctor Indicted in Troy For Death of Boy

Troy, April 21 (AP)—A nurse and a doctor, whose automobile struck and killed a 7-year-old schoolboy a month ago, were indicted Tuesday on charges of two traffic violations.

District Attorney Timothy F. O'Brien of Rensselaer county said Miss Elizabeth Seiler, 25, of (217 W. 70th street,) New York city, and Dr. John Wesley Carr, 30, of (525 E. 68th street,) New York city were held "equally liable" for the accident.

The victim was Joseph LeVitre.

The indictments cited failure to halt for a stopped school bus, and improper supervision of a driver with a learner's permit.

Miss Seiler held a learner's permit and was operating the car when it struck the boy, who was crossing the highway from the bus, police said. Dr. Carr, who had injured his ankle in a skiing accident, was lying in the back seat. He owned the car.

The alleged violations, covered in the State Vehicle and Traffic Law, ordinarily do not go before a grand jury. Police had charged the pair with criminal negligence but the grand jury did not indict them on that charge.

O'Brien said the traffic law specified that "any person, when instructing another, shall be liable with him for any breach of any local ordinance, rule or regulation."

The indictments were returned in State Supreme Court. The case was transferred to Rensselaer County Court. No date was set for the arraignments.

Bible Study Will Begin July 6 for Vacation Period

A daily vacation Bible school sponsored by the uptown Protestant ministers' group will be held again this year for two weeks beginning July 6.

Four departments will be included, an increase of one over last year's school. The addition is a department for junior high school children aged from 12 to 14. The committee in charge has requested that all junior high children interested notify their church school superintendent immediately of their desire and intention to attend the class so that the work of the new department may be planned. Superintendents are asked to relay this information to Miss Patricia Moore, director of religious education at the First Dutch Church.

Other Departments

Other departments include the beginners, primary and junior.

Mrs. Richard Holbrook will head the beginners department, which will meet at the First Dutch Church. Mrs. Casper Souers is superintendent of the primary department, which will hold its sessions at the First Baptist Church. The junior department will have Mrs. William Reardon as its superintendent and will meet at St. James Methodist Church.

Heading the new junior high school department will be Henry S. Van Der Zee. It will meet at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Float for Parade

A daily vacation Bible school float will be entered in the Memorial Day parade on Sunday, May 30, at 4 p. m. The float will be planned and decorated by junior high school students, and Miss Moore is seeking the names of students interested in helping in the project.

Plans are being made to provide transportation to the meeting places of the vacation school, especially for the benefit of those mothers who will have children in several departments.

A meeting of the committee planning the school will be held Wednesday, May 5, at the Franklin Street A.M.E. Zion Church, at 3:30 p. m.

Parents Are Arrested

New York, April 21 (AP)—The parents of a three-month-old boy were arrested on neglect charges early today after a fire burned through the infant's crib, endangering his life, police reported. The prisoners, John and Delia Slattery, were out of their two-room apartment at 410 East 134th street, the Bronx, when the blaze started, police said. They were arrested when they returned. An alarm turned in by a resident of the three-story building brought firemen who carried the baby, John, Jr., to safety. He was taken to Lincoln Hospital where it was said he had suffered smoke poisoning. His condition was not regarded as critical.

Plan Is Started

New York, April 21 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today announced the start of a "systematic plan" for installation of mechanical safeguards at Long Island Rail Road grade crossings. The plan results from a three-month study and represents a change in PSC policy, the commission said. In the past, it added, grade crossing protection was a "piecemeal procedure," following PSC action on petitions of local authorities or on proposals by the railroad.

Nurse and Doctor Indicted in Troy For Death of Boy

Troy, April 21 (AP)—A nurse and a doctor, whose automobile struck and killed a 7-year-old schoolboy a month ago, were indicted Tuesday on charges of two traffic violations.

District Attorney Timothy F. O'Brien of Rensselaer county said Miss Elizabeth Seiler, 25, of (217 W. 70th street,) New York city, and Dr. John Wesley Carr, 30, of (525 E. 68th street,) New York city were held "equally liable" for the accident.

The victim was Joseph LeVitre.

The indictments cited failure to halt for a stopped school bus, and improper supervision of a driver with a learner's permit.

Miss Seiler held a learner's permit and was operating the car when it struck the boy, who was crossing the highway from the bus, police said. Dr. Carr, who had injured his ankle in a skiing accident, was lying in the back seat. He owned the car.

The alleged violations, covered in the State Vehicle and Traffic Law, ordinarily do not go before a grand jury. Police had charged the pair with criminal negligence but the grand jury did not indict them on that charge.

O'Brien said the traffic law specified that "any person, when instructing another, shall be liable with him for any breach of any local ordinance, rule or regulation."

The indictments were returned in State Supreme Court. The case was transferred to Rensselaer County Court. No date was set for the arraignments.

Bible Study Will Begin July 6 for Vacation Period

A daily vacation Bible school sponsored by the uptown Protestant ministers' group will be held again this year for two weeks beginning July 6.

Four departments will be included, an increase of one over last year's school. The addition is a department for junior high school children aged from 12 to 14. The committee in charge has requested that all junior high children interested notify their church school superintendent immediately of their desire and intention to attend the class so that the work of the new department may be planned. Superintendents are asked to relay this information to Miss Patricia Moore, director of religious education at the First Dutch Church.

Other Departments

Other departments include the beginners, primary and junior.

Mrs. Richard Holbrook will head the beginners department, which will meet at the First Dutch Church. Mrs. Casper Souers is superintendent of the primary department, which will hold its sessions at the First Baptist Church. The junior department will have Mrs. William Reardon as its superintendent and will meet at St. James Methodist Church.

Heading the new junior high school department will be Henry S. Van Der Zee. It will meet at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Float for Parade

A daily vacation Bible school float will be entered in the Memorial Day parade on Sunday, May 30, at 4 p. m. The float will be planned and decorated by junior high school students, and Miss Moore is seeking the names of students interested in helping in the project.

Plans are being made to provide transportation to the meeting places of the vacation school, especially for the benefit of those mothers who will have children in several departments.

A meeting of the committee planning the school will be held Wednesday, May 5, at the Franklin Street A.M.E. Zion Church, at 3:30 p. m.

Airmen Lose Bottles

Limestone, Maine (AP)—What happened to the 130,000 soft drink bottles that weren't returned last year at the huge Limestone Air Force Base? The base recreation fund lost $2,600 because 130,000 bottles didn't turn up—at two cents each. More than half a million bottles are sold—full.

This expression was coined in 1935 by John Hamilton of Topeka, Kansas who said that the Republican party was carrying its campaign all the way to the "grass roots" of the farm country.

Parents Are Arrested

New York, April 21 (AP)—The parents of a three-month-old boy were arrested on neglect charges early today after a fire burned through the infant's crib, endangering his life, police reported. The prisoners, John and Delia Slattery, were out of their two-room apartment at 410 East 134th street, the Bronx, when the blaze started, police said. They were arrested when they returned. An alarm turned in by a resident of the three-story building brought firemen who carried the baby, John, Jr., to safety. He was taken to Lincoln Hospital where it was said he had suffered smoke poisoning. His condition was not regarded as critical.

Plan Is Started

New York, April 21 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today announced the start of a "systematic plan" for installation of mechanical safeguards at Long Island Rail Road grade crossings. The plan results from a three-month study and represents a change in PSC policy, the commission said. In the past, it added, grade crossing protection was a "piecemeal procedure," following PSC action on petitions of local authorities or on proposals by the railroad.

Ryan Reports on Indochina

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Singapore, April 21 (AP)—For 40 terrible days and nights soldiers of the French Union have been writing a new page of glory with their blood. Yet the fearful battle for Dien Bien Phu is more for political objectives than military.

Dien Bien Phu, once not even a spot on the map of northwest Indochina, suddenly became one of the best known names. When the Vietminh Communists decided to attack March 13, they brought home to the non-Communist world, with dramatic impact, the gravity of the situation in southeast Asia.

It was to be a major military-political battle of the seven-year-old war. The Communists desperately wanted to inflict a crushing blow. The French equally needed a victory if the political line were to be held. But the French were in an unenviable position. They could lose the battle but it was difficult to see how they could win a clear-cut decision, since they were holed up and immobile behind fortifications 180 miles from the nearest French base. They might inflict frightful casualties on the enemy as long as he attacked en masse, but he remained there continuing the siege.

'We Must Win'

"We must win this one," said Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in North Indochina. He seemed to consider the battle would be won if the all-out attack was repulsed. The monsoon rains were due soon to bog down military operations. That would hurt Vietminh supply lines, but it also would hinder the French Air Force's job of supplying and reinforcing the fortress.

So badly did the Communists want it that Russian-made Molotov trucks brought in a steady stream of heavy weapons and munitions and possibly as many as 6,000 Chinese advisers and technicians were overseeing the Vietminh's transition from jungle warfare to mass attack.

If the troops of Communist Ho Chi Minh sought military victory alone, the price would be too great. Wiping out the fortress and its defenders would be a great military victory but the Communists are not exclusively concerned with that.

Why Red Casualties

The Vietminh already has suffered thousands of casualties in the spectacular gamble. Why?

Capitalizing on Paris' weariness and impatience with the war, the Communists hoped to convince France that her position in Indochina was hopeless. The Communists hoped to cause the fall of the French government, to be succeeded by one eager to negitiate with Ho and get out of Indochina. The Communists also expected to make the voice of Ho heard at the Geneva conference opening Monday.

The prize sought was a negotiated agreement which would leave the Vietminh, strongest political force in the country, ready to step into the vacuum if and when the French withdrew their troops. The effect of that on all southeast Asia would be enormous.

The how and why of Dien Bien Phu is confusing to many. Why did Gen. Henri Navarre, French commander-in-chief, choose such a spot to make a fateful stand? It is a plain of red dust in a sweltering valley surrounded by commanding hills which permit fire to be poured down upon it. The defenders have no rear—the nearest French forces are 180 miles east. There is no place to fall back. It was a matter of stand or be massacred.

The best expanation I could get:

Dien Bien Phu had been a cluster of mud and straw huts perched on poles. Last fall the French cleared away the villagers, cut down the trees and began building fortifications. The reason was that the French were developing among the friendly, anti-Communist Thai tribesmen a type of warfare waged by the maquis (guerrillas) in France in World War 2.

Sends 316th Division

The Vietminh sent its 316th Division to clean out the Thais. The French flew more troops to Dien Bien Phu to protect guerrilla activities. The French kept reinforcing Dien Bien Phu, building strongpoints and setting up seas of barbed wire barricades, until by Jan. 1 it was a formidable complex 6 by 4 miles, encircled by thickly forested hills. The entrance was protected by eight hill strongpoints. The command post complex was made up of underground positions, well-bunkered and encircled with more barbed wire.

Two hill positions fell to the Vietminh in early assaults. The Vietminh dug in behind protecting hills and trees on the approaches to the fortifications.

Likely Navarre did not expect the Viethminh to come up with heavy artillery or shift over to mass tactics. His supporters say the original strategic purpose was to bar Vietminh drive into northern Laos. The Communists, however, did send a division into northern Laos in January, bypassing Dien Bien Phu. That turned out to be a diversion. The Vietminh was not primarily interested in grabbing territory but in a war of attrition against the French and Vietnamese.

It was fairly apparent in Hanoi that Navarre's views of Dien Bien Phu were not shared unanimously by his officers. Americans and even some French fretted at what they considered static defense thinking. The French gravely lack mobility.

"They go farther back than a Maginot Line complex," said one observer. "They seem to have a Verdun complex."

Planes Take Off

Night and day since the battle began, transport planes, supplied by the United States, have taken off with men and American supplies. The men are dropped only by night into the lighted fortress complex. If conditions are poor too many men land outside the fortress area and face death or capture and about 40 per cent of the supplies are lost. If conditions are good, supply losses are kept about 10 per cent.

The French say they don't have enough planes for both supply and support. But the French lack pilots in Indochina. Gen Cogny said he could scrape up pilots for about 100 more planes, including a transport, a fighter and perhaps two bomber squadrons—but even this seemed optimistic. Where are the pilots? In Paris, the French point out they have commitments in that respect to NATO.

The enemy is suffering perhaps five times the casualties of the French at Dien Bien Phu. But French casualties in the 7½ years of war have been costly, more in quality than in quantity. The French have lost about 16,000 Frenchmen, all noncoms and officers, and about 40,000 French Union troops, including North Africans in the Foreign Legion and Vietnamese with French Union forces.

"We are losing officers and noncoms at the rate of one Saint Cyr (the French West Point) class a year," Gen Cogny told me.

An officer remarked: "We were beaten by the Germans in 1940 because we lost so many officers in the First World War. Now, if there is a third world war, we may be beaten because so many officers have been lost in Indochina."

Tomorrow: Ho Chi Minh and Moscow.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Now with all the excitement about the new Thruway, folks ask about the first road building in this section. Going back to after the War of 1812 the business people saw the need for a roadway or thoroughfare to reach trade of the interior towards Delaware county. This led to the building of the Ulster and Delaware Plank road which was built at an average cost of $1,000 per mile. This was too heavy a load to carry for the company and it found that the income from the various toll gates was not large enough to cover costs. So they sold and divided it into districts. Another road mentioned was the Neversink Turnpike Road leading from Kingston to the Delaware river. Lucas Elmendorf, a prominent and wealthy local citizen, was the controlling spirit in this enterprise and therefore the name was given to Lucas avenue. It is said, that he spent $40,000 in this enterprise and lost it all.

It is said that the oldest road in America may be the one from Kingston through the valley of Rondout and Mamakating along the Delaware river for 100 miles. It was known as King's Highway, and in 1922 was known as the Ellenville Stage road, extending from Ellenville to Delaware down to Milford, Pa. It is said it followed an old Indian trail pass. It carried lead mined in Shawangunk mountains, grain ground at DeWitt's Mills at Greenkill to the American army at Valley Forge.

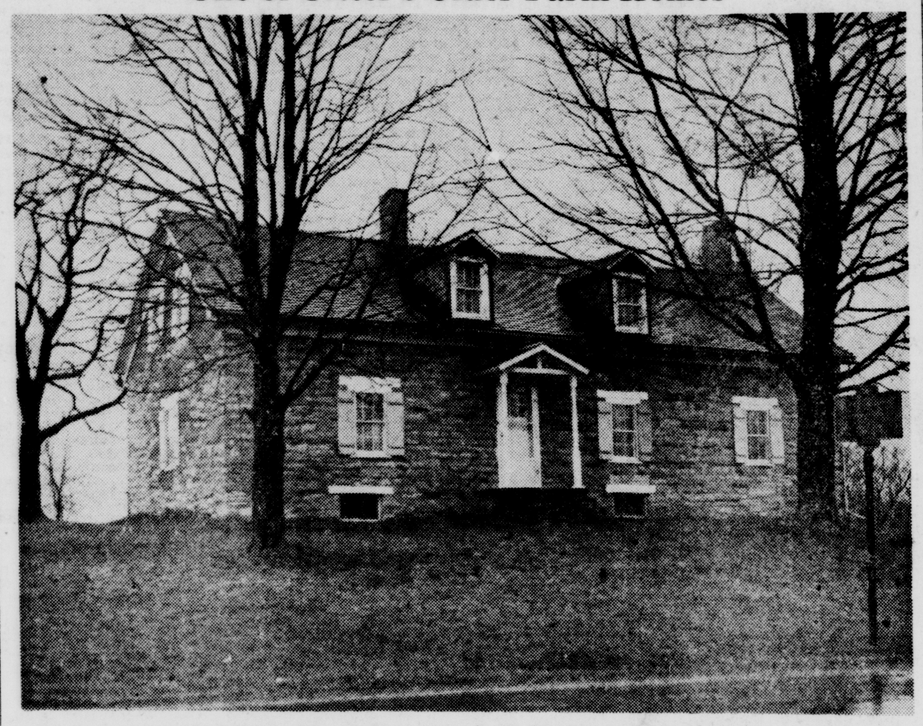

Many of the roads started as Indian Trails. According to Our Catskill Mountains by H. A. Haring, who wrote: "Long before the first appearance of Europeans in the region, an old 'Indian Trail' led from the Hudson river at Kingston to the "land of the Iroquois" in what is now Delaware county. This trail followed the meandering course of Esopus Creek. It conformed to the usual woodsman's rule of keeping close to the bed of a stream in order to benefit from the work already done by the water in cutting a way through the mountains. Whenever the colonist had to travel between Kingston and Delaware county, he circled the entire mountains. No one at the time thought it could ever be possible to cross through the Catskills in order to reach a settlement for there was no road, and, for a white man, practically not even a trail through the dark wilderness."

According to the author, "No roads were cut into the Catskills before 1817, for the simple reason that almost no one, either red or white lived within our mountains until that time. What really started the roads through the mountains was the beginning of bark-peeling and tanning. One village called at the time "Falling Waters" and later known as Palenville had the first tannery. A second one was soon built further up the Kaaterskill Clove. In the next five years, crude shanties and log huts sprang up all over the Catskills. Thousands of men with axes slashed rough roads into the deepest recesses of the Catskill mountains in their mad rush to bring out the hemlock bark. According to an old letter from Col. William Edwards, one of the biggest tanners of the state at the time, "we lose two days on the road each trip and four for the round trip on account of the indirect route. A turnpike down the mountain is necessary to keep the tanneries running." Now some 100 years later comes the long sought after Thruway from the New York to Buffalo.

Ancient Farms Tie County History To American Roots

BY CHARLES R. DOUGLAS

Ulster county this year appears to be looking more toward tomorrow than yesterday, but as time goes on it can never afford to forget its important past.

It should continue remembering the era that was of the beginning as American history goes, and here we move along with a story that goes back to the first settlers and leads up to today.

Descendants of first settlers are found in about all parts of the county, but now we are dealing with four farms that have been operated by succeeding generations for more than two centuries.

Honored by Lehman

Three of these farms in the New Paltz area were honored through a citation by Former Governor Herbert H. Lehman more than a decade ago. They are the farms of Raymond V. O. DuBois, David J. DuBois, and Philip LeFevre (then operated by the late Solomon LeFevre.) The fourth farm is that of Warren Myer at Mt. Marion.

The farms in the New Paltz area extend along the Wallkilll Valley around a stone homestead built in 1742 by Jan LeFevre, son of Simon LeFevre, one of the patentees of the original purchase.

Gov. Lehman, in his citation, which enrolled the three farm families as members of Century Farms and Farmers in January, 1941, noted:

"These three farms comprising 330 acres are historically one, and the families representing them, and now standing before you (at a meeting of the N. Y. State Agricultural Society), are essentially one family. While some are LeFevres and others DuBoises, the two families through many intermarriages are now so united as to be one stock, and their unity is no' merely of blood, but of understanding and affection as well."

Unbroken Succession

The Warren Myer farm at Mt. Marion has been operated by an unbroken succession of generations since 1710, and the present Myer family lives in the same stone house built at about that time by Christian Myer. Those following Christian were Tobias, Peter, Ephriam, Francis, Ten-Eyck and Warren. Francis Myer, a son of Warren assists his father in operating the farm. Another son, Warren, Jr., is employed by the New York Telephone Co.

The Myer farm extends from the West Shore railroad tracks just north of the main road leading from Route 9W into Mt. Marion. It extends eastward to Route 9W.

The old stone house at New Paltz is on the property operated by Raymond V. O. DuBois as a dairy and poultry farm, and has been occupied by an employe of the farm. David J. DuBois, who combines dairying and fruit farming lives in a house built more than 100 years ago to replace one built on the same site in 1745. The LeFevre farm is nearest New Paltz, and the present house there is more than a century old.

Governor Lehman said at the time of his citation in 1941: "By incontestible proof it is established that these farms have been held by the families of the present owners and occupants in unbroken tenure in the male line since 1742, just one year short of two full centuries. This is a record of which we know no parallel."

"Moreover," he said, "this land and these families are symbolical of a small but truly great people, the Walloons, who risked all for conscience sake, and who in fleeing (even as many do today) from ruthless persecution in Europe because of their religious beliefs, found sanctuary among the tolerant Dutch of the New World, and who, by their intelligence, their thrift and deep spirituality have greatly enriched the Commonwealth."

Traces DuBois History

The governor traced the history of Louis DuBois, leader of the Hudson Valley Walloons. He was born in France in 1626, and in 1660, he, with other co-religionists, sailed from Holland to New Netherland and came to Kingston which was then known as Wiltwyck.

In 1663, he said, trouble with the Indians disrupted the peace of all settlements in Ulster during which the wife and three children of Louis DuBois were taken captives. They were not rescued until several months later, and it was during the attempts of the rescuing party, that these early settlers came upon the rich, alluvial lands of the Wallkill Valley.

Louis DuBois and his associates then purchased a tract from the Esopus Indians. It extended from the Wallkill Valley to the Hudson river and embraced about 36,000 acres. Exchanged in the barter were kettles, axes, blankets, beads, needles, a keg of powder, and a variety of other items.

Jan LeFever, son of Simon, acquired another patent of 1,000 acres in 1742, and the three farms now in operation comprise 330 of the original 1,000 acres.

Additions Made

The original LeFevre house, now on the Raymond Dubois farm, was enlarged by one or two additions, built between 1747 and 1772. It once bore the name of Kettleborough and the district around it was known by that name.

In the Meyer homestead at Mt. Marion are pieces of furniture dating back to its earliest days and among them is a desk made in 1755. Wide boards and beams used by colonial builders are also still in the Myer house.

Mrs. Myer recalls having seen pieces of grain fall through cracks when the house was first wired for electricity, and this seems to bear out reports that farmers of older generations stored grain in their homes.

The farm of 170 acres now has 30 head of cattle. A small tract was sold recently for a housing development in the area.

Mrs. Myer said that the best available information indicates that the house was built two rooms at a time until it reached its present size. Earlier generations raised hay and grain on the farm.

Christian Myer, said Mrs. Myer, had 18 sons fighting for the cause of American independence in the Revolutionary War, and this she feels, is a record unsurpassed, if not unequalled in the nation.

The Myer farm and those at New Paltz, and the men who operate them are typical of others in Ulster county, but few others in the area nor in the nation, have been in the same families for more than two centuries.

Where's the Fire?

Marshall, Mo. (AP)—A group of rural residents got together, formed a fire protection association, bought a fire truck and got ready to operate. Then a call came in. But things were delayed 15 minutes to make sure the caller was a member and deserving of the organization's help. So by the time the pumper rushed up to the farm home, volunteers had the fire out.

By SOPHIE MILLER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Now with all the excitement about the new Thruway, folks ask about the first road building in this section. Going back to after the War of 1812 the business people saw the need for a roadway or thoroughfare to reach trade of the interior towards Delaware county. This led to the building of the Ulster and Delaware Plank road which was built at an average cost of $1,000 per mile. This was too heavy a load to carry for the company and it found that the income from the various toll gates was not large enough to cover costs. So they sold and divided it into districts. Another road mentioned was the Neversink Turnpike Road leading from Kingston to the Delaware river. Lucas Elmendorf, a prominent and wealthy local citizen, was the controlling spirit in this enterprise and therefore the name was given to Lucas avenue. It is said, that he spent $40,000 in this enterprise and lost it all.

It is said that the oldest road in America may be the one from Kingston through the valley of Rondout and Mamakating along the Delaware river for 100 miles. It was known as King's Highway, and in 1922 was known as the Ellenville Stage road, extending from Ellenville to Delaware down to Milford, Pa. It is said it followed an old Indian trail pass. It carried lead mined in Shawangunk mountains, grain ground at DeWitt's Mills at Greenkill to the American army at Valley Forge.

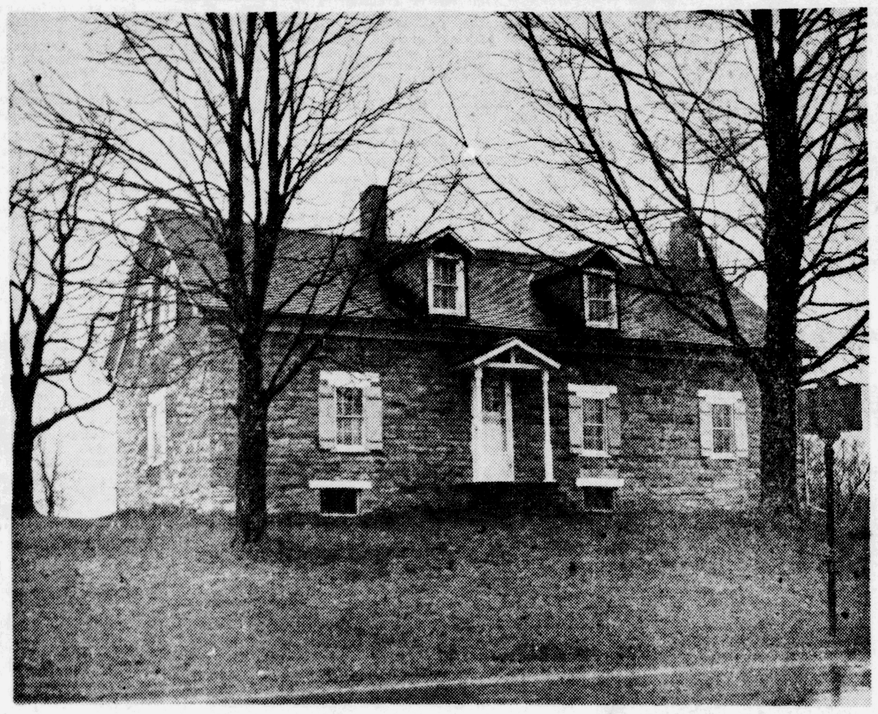

Many of the roads started as Indian Trails. According to Our Catskill Mountains by H. A. Haring, who wrote: "Long before the first appearance of Europeans in the region, an old 'Indian Trail' led from the Hudson river at Kingston to the "land of the Iroquois" in what is now Delaware county. Take a look at the two trumps held by West in today's hand. How many tricks do you suppose that you can win with those two cards whenever trumps are led? The answer to this question was quite surprising when the hand was actually played in the recent tournament for the Vanderbilt Cup.

Milton Moss, playing on the team that won the championship, led the ace of clubs from the West hand. After studying the dummy carefully, Moss decided to continue with another club.

Dummy ruffed, and declarer saw that there was now no hope of establishing the heart suit and then getting back to dummy in order to cash long hearts. South therefore decided to ruff all of his losing clubs in the dummy.

Declarer began by cashing dummy's top hearts, and West casually dropped the queen of hearts on the second of these. South therefore ruffed the next heart with the ace of trumps in order to provent a possible overruff.

He then ruffed a club in dummy, returned to his hand by ruffing a heart with the king of trumps and ruffed his last club in dummy.

Declarer then led dummy's low last heart, intending to discard the losing diamond from his hand. This was a good idea, and South should have stuck to his plan. When East ruffed with the four of spades, however, South foolish overruffed with the seven.

Moss had already discarded a low diamond on the fourth round of hearts, and he now wisely discarded the ace of diamonds.

By this time, South had only the ten of diamonds and the ten-nine-three of spades. South needed two of these four tricks in order to make his contract. He led his losing diamond, hoping that he would get a chance to ruff safely with the three of spades.

Thanks to West's discarding, however, East was able to win this trick with the jack of diamonds and could then continue with the king of diamonds. South ruffed with the nine of spades, hoping that Moss would overruff.

Moss carefully discarded his last club, however, and he now had the queen-five of trumps as his last two cards, while South had the ten-three of trumps. South had to lead a trump and West's two trumps took the last two tricks.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

France is a decaying nation. She is facing the twilight. France has lost her sense of unity, fraternity, patriotism, her ardor, the will to live and to fight. Her people no longer have confidence in the integrity and fairness of government.

Mr. Hutton

It is every Frenchman for himself. One-quarter of her legislature is loyal to Russia and not to La Belle France. Communists have infiltrated government, labor unions and the armed services.

Many things have caused this slow rot. One is that too many of her young men died in World War 1. They were the best she had. War breeds down the human race. It takes the strong and leaves the weak. France lost 1,363,000, killed in action, and had 6,160,000 casualties, or 73% of her total mobilized forces. This helped to make her a push-over in World War 2.

The French Republic was a child of our own Revolution. The "shot heard 'round the world" from the stone walls of Lexington inspired Frenchmen to be free men also. For a glorious century, and more, until General Pershing said, "Lafayette, we are here" in 1917, the two nations, in the main, marched down Freedom's Road together.

Today, all that is left in France that is good and strong says: "Stop, Look, Listen" to America.

As St. Paul told the Philippians, "Brethren, think on these things."

Take a look at the two trumps held by West in today's hand. How many tricks do you suppose that you can win with those two cards whenever trumps are led? The answer to this question was quite surprising when the hand was actually played in the recent tournament for the Vanderbilt Cup.

Milton Moss, playing on the team that won the championship, led the ace of clubs from the West hand. After studying the dummy carefully, Moss decided to continue with another club.

Dummy ruffed, and declarer saw that there was now no hope of establishing the heart suit and then getting back to dummy in order to cash long hearts. South therefore decided to ruff all of his losing clubs in the dummy.

Declarer began by cashing dummy's top hearts, and West casually dropped the queen of hearts on the second of these. South therefore ruffed the next heart with the ace of trumps in order to provent a possible overruff.

He then ruffed a club in dummy, returned to his hand by ruffing a heart with the king of trumps and ruffed his last club in dummy.

Declarer then led dummy's low last heart, intending to discard the losing diamond from his hand. This was a good idea, and South should have stuck to his plan. When East ruffed with the four of spades, however, South foolish overruffed with the seven.

Moss had already discarded a low diamond on the fourth round of hearts, and he now wisely discarded the ace of diamonds.

By this time, South had only the ten of diamonds and the ten-nine-three of spades. South needed two of these four tricks in order to make his contract. He led his losing diamond, hoping that he would get a chance to ruff safely with the three of spades.

Thanks to West's discarding, however, East was able to win this trick with the jack of diamonds and could then continue with the king of diamonds. South ruffed with the nine of spades, hoping that Moss would overruff.

Moss carefully discarded his last club, however, and he now had the queen-five of trumps as his last two cards, while South had the ten-three of trumps. South had to lead a trump and West's two trumps took the last two tricks.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

France is a decaying nation. She is facing the twilight. France has lost her sense of unity, fraternity, patriotism, her ardor, the will to live and to fight. Her people no longer have confidence in the integrity and fairness of government.

Mr. Hutton

It is every Frenchman for himself. One-quarter of her legislature is loyal to Russia and not to La Belle France. Communists have infiltrated government, labor unions and the armed services.

Many things have caused this slow rot. One is that too many of her young men died in World War 1. They were the best she had. War breeds down the human race. It takes the strong and leaves the weak. France lost 1,363,000, killed in action, and had 6,160,000 casualties, or 73% of her total mobilized forces. This helped to make her a push-over in World War 2.

The French Republic was a child of our own Revolution. The "shot heard 'round the world" from the stone walls of Lexington inspired Frenchmen to be free men also. For a glorious century, and more, until General Pershing said, "Lafayette, we are here" in 1917, the two nations, in the main, marched down Freedom's Road together.

Today, all that is left in France that is good and strong says: "Stop, Look, Listen" to America.

Hughes Trial Ends Abruptly; Boy Says His Story Untrue

The trial of Tyler C. Hughes Jr., on one sex indictment came to an abrupt end, Tuesday, when the complaining witness, a 15-year-old boy, told authorities that charges he had made were untrue.

County Judge John M. Cashin, after hearing details, granted a motion of Attorney Francis Martocci for dismissal of the indictment against the resident of 235 Lucas avenue, but reserved decision on a second indictment, which charges the same offense.

At the time of the announcement of the untrue charges, five women and one man had been selected for the jury to hear the case against Hughes.

Told District Attorney

District Attorney Howard R. St. John said the teen-ager told him yesterday morning about the untruth of his complaint against Hughes, admitting falsity of testimony he gave at a hearing before Justice Harold Macholdt in the Town of Ulster on January 11, and at his appearance before the grand jury on January 21.

St. John said the boy also admitted to a clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Ralph M. Houston, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, that the charges against Tyler were untrue.

Called to the witness stand, the Rev. Dr. Houston told the court that the boy, not one of his parishioners, but whom he knew, told him twice that the charges he had made were untrue.

Praises 'Fair' Attitude

County Judge John M. Cashin complimented the district attorney and his assistant for their "very fair" attitude in conducting the investigation that brought out the untruth of the charges, commending them for the manner in which they handled the situation.

St. John said that under the circumstances he did not see how the trial could proceed, since it was not only his duty to prosecute the guilty but to protect the innocent.

Having learned the charges were false, he said there was nothing to do but to drop prosecution of the indictment.

In moving for dismissal, Attorney Martocci said that the defendant had constantly denied the allegations and that fact had been brought to the attention of the court and the district attorney, who conducted his investigation on this grounds.

Court recessed until today.

Boston Orchestra

American music from the Revolutionary Days to the present in dance and song. This concert will be Saturday night, May 1, 8:30 o'clock at Kingston High School, the night previous to the opening day of the membership drive.

Anyone is eligible for membership simply by paying the annual dues during campaign week. All memberships must be paid by closing time, 5 p. m., Saturday, May 8. Attendance at the concerts is by membership card only. No admissions to single concerts are sold.

Through this organized audience plan all funds are used in presenting concerts and no one suffers loss or receives gain locally. The community concert plan requires the association to choose artists according to the amount of money available from membership fees at the close of each campaign. For this reason the third program is not announced until the close of the week because selection depends entirely on funds available.

A group of approximately 70 workers subscribe members during the campaign both in the city and many of the county areas. However, headquarters for the week are at the Governor Clinton Hotel where anyone may subscribe, or if anyone desires to join as a new member for next season, arrangements may be made by calling Mrs. Forst, telephone 3200; or Mrs. Carr, telephone 417.

During the actual campaign, the local workers will be assisted by Mrs. Marion Sistare of the New York office. Mrs. Sistare has been with community concerts since 1943, and has been in Kingston for the past two campaigns as well.

Mrs. Sistare's husband, Williard M. Sistare, also is a field representative for Community Concerts. Their home is in Pittsfield, Mass., and they have a son serving with the USAF at a radar station on Baffin Island.

As Mrs. Sistare puts it "I went into Community Concerts work during the war years to help out and I'm still helping out."

Her first associations were in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Then she was assigned to Canada, the Maritime provinces, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Now she works mostly in the northeastern section of the country.

She will be in town for the opening of the campaign at a workers' meeting, Sunday afternoon, May 2, at Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Harold L. Rakov and Mrs. K. Edward Lefren have charge of arrangements for this meeting.

Officers for the year are Lloyd R. LeFever, president; Mrs. Herbert I. Bloom, Leonard H. Stine, vice presidents; Mrs. Louis Kegler, secretary and Joseph H. Craig, treasurer.

Justice Minister Resigns

Tokyo, April 21 (AP)—Justice Minister Takeru Inukai resigned from the cabinet today and created the first serious break in Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's solid front against the snowballing government ship subsidy scandal. The move was certain to aggravate the crisis facing Yoshida. His opponents have called for the prime minister's resignation. Inukai did not make clear immediately his motive in resigning. Inukai had been named as one of several cabinet ministers attending "Geisha parties" as guests of rich shipbuilders. The graft probe is mainly based on alleged kickbacks from subsidized shipbuilders to political leaders.

Venereal Rate Is Low in State

Albany, April 21 (AP)—The State Health Commission reported today that the venereal disease rate had fallen so low in New York state that the control program could be turned over to one medical consultant.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe recommended in a letter to Budget Director T. Norman Hurd that the health department staff working on venereal disease be trimmed from the present two consultants, effective July 1.

Hilleboe said the rate for total reported syphilis in upstate New York had fallen from 238 cases per 100,000 persons in 1939 to 49.3 per 100,000 persons in 1953. He attributed the drop to the use of penicillin and to public health activities in case-finding and follow-up of contacts.

The community concert plan requires the association to choose artists according to the amount of money available from membership fees at the close of each campaign. For this reason the third program is not announced until the close of the week because selection depends entirely on funds available.

A group of approximately 70 workers subscribe members during the campaign both in the city and many of the county areas. However, headquarters for the week are at the Governor Clinton Hotel where anyone may subscribe, or if anyone desires to join as a new member for next season, arrangements may be made by calling Mrs. Forst, telephone 3200; or Mrs. Carr, telephone 417.

During the actual campaign, the local workers will be assisted by Mrs. Marion Sistare of the New York office. Mrs. Sistare has been with community concerts since 1943, and has been in Kingston for the past two campaigns as well.

Mrs. Sistare's husband, Williard M. Sistare, also is a field representative for Community Concerts. Their home is in Pittsfield, Mass., and they have a son serving with the USAF at a radar station on Baffin Island.

As Mrs. Sistare puts it "I went into Community Concerts work during the war years to help out and I'm still helping out."

Her first associations were in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Then she was assigned to Canada, the Maritime provinces, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Now she works mostly in the northeastern section of the country.

She will be in town for the opening of the campaign at a workers' meeting, Sunday afternoon, May 2, at Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Harold L. Rakov and Mrs. K. Edward Lefren have charge of arrangements for this meeting.

Officers for the year are Lloyd R. LeFever, president; Mrs. Herbert I. Bloom, Leonard H. Stine, vice presidents; Mrs. Louis Kegler, secretary and Joseph H. Craig, treasurer.

Justice Minister Resigns

Tokyo, April 21 (AP)—Justice Minister Takeru Inukai resigned from the cabinet today and created the first serious break in Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's solid front against the snowballing government ship subsidy scandal. The move was certain to aggravate the crisis facing Yoshida. His opponents have called for the prime minister's resignation. Inukai did not make clear immediately his motive in resigning. Inukai had been named as one of several cabinet ministers attending "Geisha parties" as guests of rich shipbuilders. The graft probe is mainly based on alleged kickbacks from subsidized shipbuilders to political leaders.

Venereal Rate Is Low in State

Albany, April 21 (AP)—The State Health Commission reported today that the venereal disease rate had fallen so low in New York state that the control program could be turned over to one medical consultant.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe recommended in a letter to Budget Director T. Norman Hurd that the health department staff working on venereal disease be trimmed from the present two consultants, effective July 1.

Hilleboe said the rate for total reported syphilis in upstate New York had fallen from 238 cases per 100,000 persons in 1939 to 49.3 per 100,000 persons in 1953. He attributed the drop to the use of penicillin and to public health activities in case-finding and follow-up of contacts.

Miss Esther M. Osberg George S. Hulsair Wed At Holy Cross Church

The Holy Cross Church was the scene of the Easter Sunday wedding of Miss Esther Margaret Osberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Osberg of 36 Pine Grove avenue, and George Stanley Hulsair, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hulsair of Sawkill. The Rev. Stanley Dean performed the double ring ceremony at 2 o'clock.

The organist for the occasion was Walter Kidd. Mrs. Ellen Haynes was soloist in the selections, O Promise Me; Because and I Love You Truly. Easter lilies formed the decorations in the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Florentine lace with a molded bodice, and long sleeves. Her skirt was of ballerina length. Her fingertip veil was of net bordered with Florentine lace. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of white carnations with a center of pink carnations.

Miss Valnette Donniacuo of Long Island was maid of honor. Her gown was of maize taffeta and she carried a bouquet of iris, tulips and daffodils.

Mrs. E. R. Matthews of Rome, sister of the bride, and Mrs. William Murtha of Schenectady, sister of the bridegroom were the attendants. They wore gowns of nile green taffeta with floral headbands of the same color, and carried bouquets identical to that of the maid of honor.

Miss Lezlie Ann Matthews and Patty Murtha were the flower girls. They wore frocks of white taffeta with sweetheart headbands, and carried bouquets of spring flowers.

William Hulsair of Kingston was best man. Serving as ushers were Donald Hulsair, brother of the bridegroom, and Wayne Burton of Sawkill.

A reception was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel for 65 guests from Kingston, Brooklyn, White Plains, Peekskill, Rome, St. Johnsville, Milton, Newburgh, New Jersey, Washington, D. C. and Canada. Roger Baer furnished organ music during the reception.

Following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Hulsair will make their home in Kingston. For traveling, the bride chose a beige rose suit with dark blue accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hulsair are Kingston High School graduates. Mrs. Hulsair is now a senior student at State Teachers College, New Paltz, and is student teaching in Schenectady. The bridegroom is a sergeant in the air force, stationed at Sampson Air Base.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

SURELY AN UNWELCOMED GUEST

Today's first letter tells me: "My sister took me to task the other evening, after dining in her house, for having smeared lipstick on her best dinner napkins. She said that she always keeps a tissue on hand and wipes her lipstick off on that and wouldn't think of wiping it on her hostess' linen. What are napkins for if not to wipe one's mouth on? Even if lipstick stains are hard to get out, I feel that any extra minutes of rubbing them clean is part of the work involved in giving a dinner. I have had this happen to me any number of times and would never think of criticizing my guests for it. May I please have your opinion?"

To take a napkin and wipe it across your mouth so hard that a heavy smear of lipstick comes off on it can permanently destroy a fine linen one. One who uses lipstick should learn to turn one's lips in so firmly as to avoid smearing any trace of red on the napkin. (With a little practice this is easily done.)

Handwritten Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: When sending personal notes of invitation to my daughter's wedding, may I put R.s.v.p. down at the bottom to be sure of getting replies? Some of the people are strangers (groom's side) and I'm afraid they won't let us know ahead of time. My own friends I'd feel free to call if they didn't, but the strangers I wouldn't.

Answer: R.s.v.p. is correct only for a third person invitation. A personal note is worded in such a way that a reply is implied. For example: Close your letter with, "Hoping to hear that you and John (or Mr. Smith) will be with us on that day. Sincerely."

Who Makes First Move?

Dear Mrs. Post: When husband and wife, or any man and girl, go to see friends together, which one should make the first move to leave?

Answer: In the case of a man and wife, there is no rule. And although the girl should properly make the first move, the man may quite well do so if it becomes necessary.

An afternoon tea is one of the most popular as well as the simplest expression of hospitality. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet E-27 includes full details for preparing and serving tea. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Miss Mary Ann McGowan, another sister of the bride, and Mrs. Matthew Doyle of Port Ewen, her sister-in-law, were the attendants. They wore gowns of coral nylon tulle of identical style to that of the honor attendant's.

Angus G. Doyle of Port Ewen was best man for his brother. Robert Hanson and Fred Spinneweber of Port Ewen were ushers.

Following a reception held at The Barn for 150 guests, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle left on a trip through the southern states. For traveling, the bride chose a beige suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage. On their return, they will live at 171 Henry street.

The bride is a graduate of the class of 1945 of Kingston High School, and is a force clerk for the New York Telephone Company, Kingston. The bridegroom is also a graduate of the class of 1945, and is employed by Russell Towing Company in New York.

The cross often was used as a symbol on European coins and medals before the Christian era.

Good Taste Today

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

SURELY AN UNWELCOMED GUEST

Today's first letter tells me: "My sister took me to task the other evening, after dining in her house, for having smeared lipstick on her best dinner napkins. She said that she always keeps a tissue on hand and wipes her lipstick off on that and wouldn't think of wiping it on her hostess' linen. What are napkins for if not to wipe one's mouth on? Even if lipstick stains are hard to get out, I feel that any extra minutes of rubbing them clean is part of the work involved in giving a dinner. I have had this happen to me any number of times and would never think of criticizing my guests for it. May I please have your opinion?"

To take a napkin and wipe it across your mouth so hard that a heavy smear of lipstick comes off on it can permanently destroy a fine linen one. One who uses lipstick should learn to turn one's lips in so firmly as to avoid smearing any trace of red on the napkin. (With a little practice this is easily done.)

Handwritten Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: When sending personal notes of invitation to my daughter's wedding, may I put R.s.v.p. down at the bottom to be sure of getting replies? Some of the people are strangers (groom's side) and I'm afraid they won't let us know ahead of time. My own friends I'd feel free to call if they didn't, but the strangers I wouldn't.

Answer: R.s.v.p. is correct only for a third person invitation. A personal note is worded in such a way that a reply is implied. For example: Close your letter with, "Hoping to hear that you and John (or Mr. Smith) will be with us on that day. Sincerely."

Who Makes First Move?

Dear Mrs. Post: When husband and wife, or any man and girl, go to see friends together, which one should make the first move to leave?

Answer: In the case of a man and wife, there is no rule. And although the girl should properly make the first move, the man may quite well do so if it becomes necessary.

An afternoon tea is one of the most popular as well as the simplest expression of hospitality. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet E-27 includes full details for preparing and serving tea. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

State Business Holds Up, Dewey Declares in Address

New York, April 21 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, citing record employment figures, says business in New York state is holding up under the shift to a peace-time economy.

In a television and radio speech last night, Dewey discounted talk of a "so-called recession" and said "a few facts might be refreshing and reassuring."

He listed a January record of 5,846,000 non-farm jobs this year, monthly decreases in insured unemployment, 850,000 new jobs since the war and a record high of 561,000 businesses in the state.

"The change-over from war to peace-time economy seems to be going better than most people expected," the governor added.

"If for any reason, there should be a real decline in business," he continued, "your state is in the best condition in its history to meet whatever happens."

Can Be Adjusted

Dewey said a $2,800,000,000 state public works program can be adjusted to off-set any drop in business. "Some of this work could be spread over the years or it could be concentrated in a very short period to pick up the slack," he said.

In reviewing work of this year's Legislature, Dewey mentioned with special pride the new laws governing harness racing and political ethics.

He reviewed the state probe of harness racing and resulting laws that set up a special commissioner with strong powers to regulate the sport, increased the state's share of the take and prevented political officers from owing race track stock.

Of new laws defining the "conflict of interest" between the public duties and private interests of state officials, Dewey said:

"These bills break new ground . . . this year we have reaffirmed our cherished devotion to the concept that the public business is in truth a public trust and that the morals of the market place are not good enough for government service."

Accomplishments Reported

Dewey also listed among legislative accomplishments new funds voted for public housing, mental hospitals, aid to handicapped children, highway studies and schools.

He said the school system already is the best-financed of any state "and comes closest to meeting ideal requirements. I intend to do all I can to keep it that way."

Democratic State Chairman Richard H. Balch asked CBS radio and CBS-TV for equal time to reply to Dewey's speech. The request was made before the broadcast and CBS answered that a governor's report does not usually justify equal time for the opposition party.

However, CBS promised to reconsider if Dewey's speech were essentially controversial or political.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Local Game Club Distributes Fish

Saugerties, April 20—The Saugerties Fish and Game Club in a special project to improve trout fishing in the Saugerties area distributed nearly 3,200 trout Saturday afternoon. The trout, many of which were legal size, were delivered by the Catskill Fish Hatchery of Livingston Manor. According to club secretary, Bert W. Pettinger, over two-thirds were of legal size. The assortment included trout as large as 18 inches and as small as six inches.

Members who assisted in the planting in local streams included James Overbaugh, local game protector, Frank C. Sloboda, Milton Armstrong and his son, Floyd Schultz, Richard Smith, Ross Snyder, Carlton B. King and his son, Warren Knaust, Robert Backus, Daniel Hogan and Roy Longendyke.

Officials expressed their gratitude to members who helped distribute the trout and observed that it was a good turnout in spite of rainy weather. Richard L. Melius, president of the organization, hoped that the announcement would encourage sportsmen throughout the area to support the local game club that is increasing their chances of taking home fish or game with these many worthwhile projects.

Melius urges all local sportsmen to join the club and support the organization with their dues which are nominal in comparison to the excellent facilities offered by the club to area hunters and fishermen.

Game Club Invites Junior Members

Saugerties, April 20—Richard L. Melius, president of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club announced that membership in the club is open to all juniors in the town and village of Saugerties.

Any boys who hunt and fish and are interested in conservation are welcome to join. The dues for boys under the age of 16 is half the regular membership dues.

As an added incentive to join at this particular time the club announced that it will send one boy between the ages of 13 and 17 for one week to the DeBruce Conservation Camp. The boy selected to make this trip in July will be chosen from among the junior members of the club.

To further emphasize the importance of club membership to the fish and game improvement program of the club, President Melius said that all club funds derived from dues are used to improve the hunting and fishing conditions of the local sportsmen.

Local Game Club Distributes Fish

Saugerties, April 20—The Saugerties Fish and Game Club in a special project to improve trout fishing in the Saugerties area distributed nearly 3,200 trout Saturday afternoon. The trout, many of which were legal size, were delivered by the Catskill Fish Hatchery of Livingston Manor. According to club secretary, Bert W. Pettinger, over two-thirds were of legal size. The assortment included trout as large as 18 inches and as small as six inches.

Members who assisted in the planting in local streams included James Overbaugh, local game protector, Frank C. Sloboda, Milton Armstrong and his son, Floyd Schultz, Richard Smith, Ross Snyder, Carlton B. King and his son, Warren Knaust, Robert Backus, Daniel Hogan and Roy Longendyke.

Officials expressed their gratitude to members who helped distribute the trout and observed that it was a good turnout in spite of rainy weather. Richard L. Melius, president of the organization, hoped that the announcement would encourage sportsmen throughout the area to support the local game club that is increasing their chances of taking home fish or game with these many worthwhile projects.

Melius urges all local sportsmen to join the club and support the organization with their dues which are nominal in comparison to the excellent facilities offered by the club to area hunters and fishermen.

GE 3-1 Split Plan Gains Approval

Schenectady, April 21 (AP)—A management proposal to split General Electric Co. common stock three shares for one has gained overwhelming approval of the firm's shareholders.

Owners of 22,371,152 shares voted in favor of the conversion at GE's annual meeting here yesterday. Owners of 56,005 shares voted against the split, which will lower the stock's cost per share.

GE has about 250,000 stockholders.

President Ralph Cordiner reported that first quarter sales in 1954 totaled $715,596,000, a drop of 8 per cent from last year's record-breaking first quarter figure of $777,819,000.

Earnings showed a gain. They amounted to $48,029,000, or $1.67 a share, an increase of 42 per cent over the $33,849,000, or $1.17 a share, for the corresponding 1953 period.

Commercial sales declined 3 per cent.

Cordiner told the stockholders that GE planned to spend a record 175 million dollars for plant expansion and equipment in 1954.

Is Thought Victim Of 'Bush Madness'

Huntsville, Ont., April 21 (AP)—For two days and nights Joseph Tanacs, a 26-year-old hunter, wandered in the dense swampy brush near here, lost since Friday from his two hunting companions.

Searchers picked up his zig-zag trail finally. At one point it came within a mile and a half of the rescue party.

"You could see where he had traveled by night from the way he stumbled, slipped and tripped over logs," said William Ellerington, conservation officer of the Huntsville district 180 miles north of Toronto. "He seemed to have been hit by bush madness and blundered through thick under bush in a way no clear-thinking man would."

The searchers found Tanacs' body yesterday, his gun alongside. He was dead from a gunshot wound in his left temple.

Coroner J. P. Davies of Huntsville said the man apparently had committed suicide.

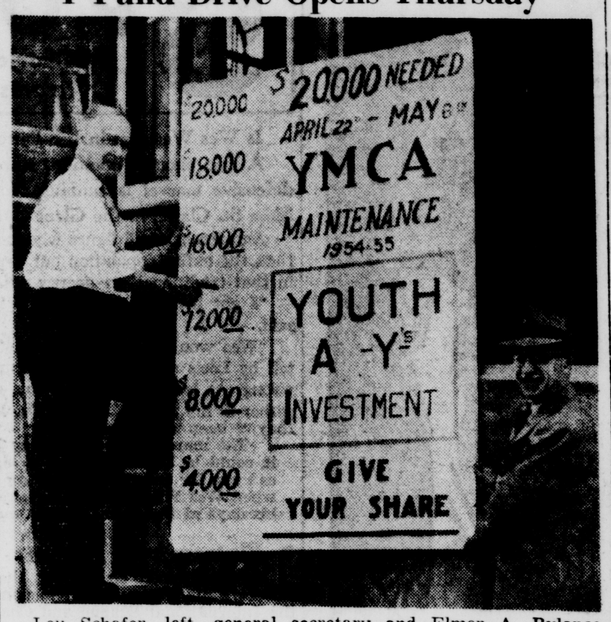

Two Actions Settled

Two civil actions were settled in County Court today. A negligence action brought by James W. Hughes against Richard E. Every, Charles H. Gaffney for plaintiff and Robert Ortale for defendant, was announced settled on the call of the day calendar and an action for rent and money loaned, brought by John Nurmi against John J. Fox, was also settled. Schirmer & Carnright for plaintiff and Joseph M. Campbell for defendant.

McGinnis Elected

New Haven, Conn., Auril 21 (AP)—Patrick B. McGinnis, 49-year-old New York financier, was elected president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad today.

Wilson Says . . .

ate Investigations subcommittee outlining the things he will seek to prove in the televised public hearing set to open at 10:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

McCarthy contended that concern that he was about to expose "misconduct" and "possibly law violations" by Hensel led Army officials to attempt to discredit him.

The Army officials chiefly involved in the long row with the senator are Secretary Robert T. Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams.

Hensel retorted "barefaced lies" to McCarthy's charges and challenged the senator to repeat them under circumstances permitting a libel suit.

Wilson Replies in Negative

Wilson chuckled, paused, then answered "no."

He added that he didn't want to comment about anything pending before a congressional committee. But he said:

"I think Struve Hensel is a competent, honest man. If I didn't believe so he wouldn't be on his present assignment."

As to the general effects of the whole row, Wilson said that it not only had done no good to military morale. It has also, he commented added to his problems in his efforts to "get some fine, capable men to come down here....at personal sacrifice. I don't think it's going to help."

Hensel, a government official for much of the time since 1941, was named to his present post by President Eisenhower and confirmed by the Senate without objection on Feb. 19.

Accuses Senator of Smear

"Bare-faced lies," he shot back to a statement by McCarthy saying that he was seeking to dodge investigation "for misconduct and possibly for law violations." He accused the senator of an "attempted smear . . . a diversionary move."

Hensel also challenged McCarthy to repeat his accusations in some forum where he would not have the immunity which covered the formal statement to the subcommittee. If McCarthy does that, Hensel said, "I will guarantee a law suit."

McCarthy, in Houston, Texas, for a speech late today, said "I wouldn't cooperate in any delay like that," and he added:

"Hensel knows it would take years to do this in a trial. We will be under oath when the committee hears this case and the witnesses will be under oath. He can call any witnesses he wants to.

"After that's over . . . I can see no reason why I shouldn't repeat this stuff . . . if at some future time he still wants a lawsuit—and I don't think he will—I see no reason why not have one."

Body Identified

The body of the Pickett youngster has not been recovered.

Teletype Help Given

McCardle said identification was made quickly through the Kingston Police Department which sent out a description of the boy by teletype.

The Ulster County Sheriff's Office also made contacts with sheriff's departments at Catskill, Poughkeepsie and Hudson to learn whether any boys had been reported missing.

McCardle, Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg with deputies, William Churchill and Joseph Gentile, assisted by Michael Tiano of East Kingston, although hindered by high tide and rough water, succeeded in removing the body from the river by 1 p. m. yesterday. The body was taken to the McCardle Funeral Home.

Authorities Are Praised

The coroner praised the work of the local police and sheriff's departments and said the East Kingston Fire Department had also been "very cooperative." The fire department supplied pike poles. They were able to raise the body from the river with a heavy rope.

In raising the body an outer coat worn by the boy was lost and could not be recovered. McCardle said the current was "terrific."

The body will be removed to Troy some time today for funeral services and burial.

Attempted Burglary

Police were notified at 7:20 p. m., yesterday of an apparent attempt to enter Wagner's Delicatessen, 734 Broadway. The attempt was at a rear door, the report said, and moulding around the door had been removed. The proprietor said the store had been closed yesterday but he visited it at about midnight and he believed he might have frightened the person or persons attempting to get in the building. He did not notice the damage until thise morning, he said.

American Tel Annual Meeting Is Scheduled

New York, April 21 (AP)—The world's biggest stockholder family, the million and a quarter shareholders of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., hold their annual meeting here today.

Several hundred were expected in person at the session (1 p. m. EST) at the building at 195 Broadway that is the headquarters of AT & T, parent company of the 12-billion-dollar Bell System, with most of the remainder represented by proxies.

But there is no proxy fight raging such as that for control of the New York Central Railroad in which financier Robert R. Young is opposing William White, Central president.

White, incidentally, is among the 15 AT & T directors nominated by management for re-election to the board. The management slate usually is elected without opposition.

American League, Once Power Loop Now Seems A Pitcher's Paradise

What did the National League sluggers learn in spring training that their American League friends apparently overlooked?

This was becoming a vital question today after the second straight one-hitter in the junior circuit while the National League was going its slug-happy way with another 26-hit donnybrook.

On Monday Jim McDonald of the New York Yankees, a right-hander, subdued Boston with the exception of a single by Harry Agganis.

A big share of the National League fireworks has involved the St. Louis Cardinals. The Red Birds absorbed a 13-6 shellacking at the hands of the Cincinnati Redlegs last night and now have been battered for 60 runs in six games.

The battering hasn't been all one-sided. The Cardinals have averaged almost seven runs for each of the same half dozen contests.

For years the National League has been the pitchers' league. Castoffs from American League mound staffs have gone on to big seasons in the National while the American has concentrated on hitting stars.

But this season the hits are coming off National League bats.

Giants Beat Pirates

The two contrasting contests yesterday were part of a curtailed five-game schedule. Philadelphia whipped Brooklyn 6-3 and New York defeated Pittsburgh 6-2 in the National League and Chicago beat Detroit 7-2 in the American. Milwaukee and Chicago in the National were rained out.

Kellner was breezing along toward the first no-hitter in Griffith Stadium since 1931 when Terwilliger, a .235 hitter, rapped one back through the middle.

"I didn't feel too bad," Kellner said. "You figure a feller is lucky to pitch a no hitter."

Alex should know. He pitched one back in 1948 for Savannah of the Sally League. But last night's game was his first one-hit performance since breaking into organized ball in 1941.

Kellner walked three and struck out six. He had retired 15 men in a row before Terwilliger broke the string.

Fireballing Virgil Trucks picked up his first 1954 victory for the White Sox as he checked Detroit on six hits. The 12-hit Chicago attack included Minnie Minoso's second home run of the season and three safeties by Nellie Fox.

The Cardinals used five pitchers against the heavy hitting Redlegs and none of them toiled with any success. Memo Luna, a $75,000 winter purchase, lasted only two-thirds of an inning in his first starting role and was charged with the loss. Wally Post, Gus Bell and Andy Seminick homered for the winners.

Roe Pounded

Venerable Preacher Roe made his first appearance of the season for the Dodgers but the Phillies were ready for him and sent him to the showers in less than five innings. The deciding blast was a mighty home hun by Del Ennis with a man aboard. Little Murry Dickson picked up his second straight victory since joining the Phils.

The Giants picked on Pittsburgh rookie Nelson King for three runs in the eighth inning to give them a comfortable margin after building a 3-2 edge against Paul La Palme who left for a pinch hitter. Johnny Antonelli rocked through the first three innings when he gave up six walks, then settled down to win his first game.

Stanton Hal Takes Yonkers Feature

Yonkers, April 21 (AP)—Stanton Hal, driven by Bill Haughton, closed fast in the stretch to beat Prince Eton by a neck in the $3,000 Huguenot Pace at Yonkers Raceway last night in 2:03.3. Poor Pop was third. The attendance was 21,890.

Stanton Hal, who was beaten in a 2:07 race last week, paid $10.50, $5.30, $3.90.

Errard King Joins Derby Casualties

New York April 21 (AP)—Errard King, a fleet sprinter who was rated an 8-1 choice of the Kentucky Derby, today joined a half-dozen other 3-year-olds whose fond hopes of winning the run for the roses have been shattered by injuries.

Joe Gavegnano's colt suffered a quarter crack while working out at Jamaica—the same sort of injury that sidelined Equipoise on the eve of the 1931 Derby. A quarter-crack is a split on the wall of the hoof, something like a broken finger nail. The horse must rest until it grows back.

The bay son of Errand-Derby Dover thus takes his place on the sidelines and leaves Correlation, Determine and Fisherman as the lowest priced colts in the future book. Correlation is 2-1 and Determine and Fisherman each 5-to-2.

Babe Zaharias Passes Crucial Test in Joust With Cancer

Beaumont, Tex., April 21 (AP)—Babe Zaharias has passed another crucial test in her fight against cancer and will return to golf when she feels she can win again.

Right now the indomintable Babe, most famous of women athletes, is taking a rest. "I don't like to lose," she explained.

Mrs. Zaharias was pronounced quite O.K. yesterday after blood and X-ray tests were studied by her physicians in a physical checkup one year after her operation for cancer.

Physicians who made the tests expressed amazement that she had been able to resume her golf in less than four months after the operation and had played the entire winter tour of the Ladies PGA, winning two tournaments and finishing high in others.

But in the last tournaments of the tour she had found the final rounds too exacting and had faltered in the stretch.

Is Wes Westrum in Leo Durocher's doghouse?

A fair enough question, since the former Kingston Recreation defensive marvel is running No. 3, behind rookie Ray Katt and Ebba St. Claire, in the Giant catching scheme of the moment.

An area baseball figure who knows more major league ball players than the entire population put together, saw Westrum at West Point in that traditional pre-opener with the Cadets.

"I got the impression Wes is in the doghouse," the baseball man said.

"Wes wouldn't commit himself," the man went on, "but I could tell by Leo's attitude and Westrum's actions that something must be wrong. At least, let's put it this way: The whole setup didn't fit together in my mind . . . and I've known Leo and Westrum as long as they've been in the majors."

The man's observation may be based on sheer speculation or it could be the product of a highly developed intuition. Nobody can say for sure. But one thing must be reasonably obvious . . . when Wes Westrum has to take a back seat for Ebba St. Claire, his days at the Polo Grounds must be numbered.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Most improved bowlers in the Church Federation League were Robert Fatum, who gained 15 points over his 1953-54 performance in the International League and Charlie Rider, who upped his mark 23 points in the National circuit. New York Giant players were reported grousing about that annual trip to West Point, the day before the regular season kicks off. But a guy at the Point summed up his reaction quite succinctly: That trip was good enough for John McGraw and Giant teams that won plenty of pennants. . . . What are these also rans squawking about? The "170" average is still the superior mark of distinction in women's bowling. Only two made the grade in the biggest league in the city (Friendship)—Marie Kelekian, the Bowler of the Year, and Dot Rawding, an old pro.

• Of Men and Mice:

While KHS waits patiently for opening baseball date, Newburgh Academy, 1954 pennant favorites, romped over Walden High, 4-0 and 18-0. Bob Miller, 16-year-old right hander, fanned 13 batters in one game. Ed "Moose" Krause, Notre Dame's AD, addresses the Mid-Hudson Valley Notre Dame Club at Poughkeepsie on April 27. It was opening day at Yankee Stadium, when a neighbor asked another, "Wonder how the Giants are doing?" "Please stop worrying about the minor league," came the sour rejoinder. Another customer squawked about the conspicuous absence of mustard on one of the Stevens Brothers weiners. "Hey, doc," he yelled, "whaddya doin', workin' for Topping." Then there was the griper who leaned over to his friend, "That weather man said it was going to be 70 today." "Yeh," came the reply, "he must have meant near the boiler room."

• The NBA's Dilemma:

The National Basketball Association is at the crossroads at its meeting in New York this weekend. The decisions the league brass make this time around will determine whether the million dollar jackpot becomes just a pot or the NBA regains the glory road. The silly playoffs aggravated a lot of things that were eating out the innards of the league which should be one of the nation's best sports structures. Among the problems to be considered are (1) unsatisfactory rules of play; (2) insufficient financial resources; (3) unreasonable scheduling; (4) bad assignment and supervision of officials; (5) anarchy at the top; (6) complete lack of self discipline in the ranks; (7) dull, drawn out games resulting from stalling and fouling; (8) insane partiality, animosity (against New York) and provincialism; (9) minor league cities in major league guise; (10) the impression that a fair test of basketball ability isn't possible in the NBA and (11) bad entertainment which won't bring back customers repeatedly exposed to it.

Sounds like a lot of trouble, but, brother, the NBA has it.

D. Whalen Fires 624

Dick Whalen got off to a fast start to unload a 626 series in the Booster League last night. He fired solos of 224, 206 and 196.

Trailing Whalen were a pair of 533 shooters—Art Lansperry with a 223 high and Ed Sohm, who bagged 200 for his top single.

The remainder of the league scattered out with Don Keyser shooting 213-525, John Brady 521, A. Salmi 513, Jim Howard 509, Elmer Williams 503, Joe Conlin 499, Bob Tierney 499, Jim Ryan 491.

Team results:

Greenkill No. 1 (3) Greenkill No. 2 (0); Rifton Rest 2, Sunnyside Grill 1; Morgan's Rest 2, McDermott's P. Astor Bar 2, Amell's No. 1 (1); Letus-Inn 3, Haber's Grill 0; Moose Lodge 3, Amell's No. 2 (0).

Spaulding Tops Church Keglers With 180 Mark

Howard "Hod" Spaulding was the Church Federation International League's best kegler with a 180 average for the 1953-54 season.

Spaulding had an eight-point bulge over runnerup Bob Fatum, who finished 172. There was a 13-point spread between these two worthies and the remainder of the field.

Everett Wolven won the league high single award with 241, although Spaulding had the best mark—245—and league top series of 621. Clayton Harder was awarded the high series prize with 563.

Turner Choice Over Bobby Jones

Philadelphia, April 21 (AP)—Gil Turner, the welterweight turned middleweight turned welterweight fights in the middleweight field again tonight in a scheduled 10 rounder against Bobby Jones.

Turner and his manager, George Kat, claim they aren't interested in the middleweight war. They want to meet Carmine Basilio for the right to take on 147 pound champion Kid Gavilan. But the Philadelphia flurry puncher continues to campaign with the 160 pounders.

In fact, promoter Herman Taylor says the winner of tonight's nationally televised (CBS) fight will earn an outdoor crack at Joey Giardello, the Philadelphian tapped as Carl (Bobo) Olson's next 160 pound title opponent.

This Turner-Jones setto is a return bout. The Jones boy, a 3-1 underdog last March, won a split decision over Turner.

The Reading, Pa. Indians will open defense of the title at home in a night game with Allentown. The only daylight game on the opening card finds the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Barons playing the Grays at Williamsport, Pa.

The other arc-light openers pit Albany's Senators against the Blue Jays at Schenectady and the Elmira Pioneers against the Triplets at Binghamton.

American League, Once Power Loop Now Seems A Pitcher's Paradise

What did the National League sluggers learn in spring training that their American League friends apparently overlooked?

This was becoming a vital question today after the second straight one-hitter in the junior circuit while the National League was going its slug-happy way with another 26-hit donnybrook.

Lefty Alex Kellner of the Philadelphia Athletics tamed the Washington Senators on one safety—Wayne Terwilliger's lonesome single into center field with two out in the eighth inning as the A's won 7-0.

On Monday Jim McDonald of the New York Yankees, a right-hander, subdued Boston with the exception of a single by Harry Agganis.

A big share of the National League fireworks has involved the St. Louis Cardinals. The Red Birds absorbed a 13-6 shellacking at the hands of the Cincinnati Redlegs last night and now have been battered for 60 runs in six games.

The battering hasn't been all one-sided. The Cardinals have averaged almost seven runs for each of the same half dozen contests.

For years the National League has been the pitchers' league. Castoffs from American League mound staffs have gone on to big seasons in the National while the American has concentrated on hitting stars.

But this season the hits are coming off National League bats.

Giants Beat Pirates

The two contrasting contests yesterday were part of a curtailed five-game schedule. Philadelphia whipped Brooklyn 6-3 and New York defeated Pittsburgh 6-2 in the National League and Chicago beat Detroit 7-2 in the American. Milwaukee and Chicago in the National were rained out.

Kellner was breezing along toward the first no-hitter in Griffith Stadium since 1931 when Terwilliger, a .235 hitter, rapped one back through the middle.

"I didn't feel too bad," Kellner said. "You figure a feller is lucky to pitch a no hitter."

Alex should know. He pitched one back in 1948 for Savannah of the Sally League. But last night's game was his first one-hit performance since breaking into organized ball in 1941.

Kellner walked three and struck out six. He had retired 15 men in a row before Terwilliger broke the string.

Fireballing Virgil Trucks picked up his first 1954 victory for the White Sox as he checked Detroit on six hits. The 12-hit Chicago attack included Minnie Minoso's second home run of the season and three safeties by Nellie Fox.

The Cardinals used five pitchers against the heavy hitting Redlegs and none of them toiled with any success. Memo Luna, a $75,000 winter purchase, lasted only two-thirds of an inning in his first starting role and was charged with the loss. Wally Post, Gus Bell and Andy Seminick homered for the winners.

Roe Pounded

Venerable Preacher Roe made his first appearance of the season for the Dodgers but the Phillies were ready for him and sent him to the showers in less than five innings. The deciding blast was a mighty home hun by Del Ennis with a man aboard. Little Murry Dickson picked up his second straight victory since joining the Phils.

The Giants picked on Pittsburgh rookie Nelson King for three runs in the eighth inning to give them a comfortable margin after building a 3-2 edge against Paul La Palme who left for a pinch hitter. Johnny Antonelli rocked through the first three innings when he gave up six walks, then settled down to win his first game.

Stanton Hal Takes Yonkers Feature

Yonkers, April 21 (AP)—Stanton Hal, driven by Bill Haughton, closed fast in the stretch to beat Prince Eton by a neck in the $3,000 Huguenot Pace at Yonkers Raceway last night in 2:03.3. Poor Pop was third. The attendance was 21,890.

Stanton Hal, who was beaten in a 2:07 race last week, paid $10.50, $5.30, $3.90.

Stanton Hal started from the first post, but had to come on with a rush through the stretch to nip Prince Eton at the wire.

Most improved bowlers in the Church Federation League were Robert Fatum, who gained 15 points over his 1953-54 performance in the International League and Charlie Rider, who upped his mark 23 points in the National circuit. New York Giant players were reported grousing about that annual trip to West Point, the day before the regular season kicks off. But a guy at the Point summed up his reaction quite succinctly: That trip was good enough for John McGraw and Giant teams that won plenty of pennants. . . . What are these also rans squawking about? The "170" average is still the superior mark of distinction in women's bowling. Only two made the grade in the biggest league in the city (Friendship)—Marie Kelekian, the Bowler of the Year, and Dot Rawding, an old pro.

• Of Men and Mice:

While KHS waits patiently for opening baseball date, Newburgh Academy, 1954 pennant favorites, romped over Walden High, 4-0 and 18-0. Bob Miller, 16-year-old right hander, fanned 13 batters in one game. Ed "Moose" Krause, Notre Dame's AD, addresses the Mid-Hudson Valley Notre Dame Club at Poughkeepsie on April 27. It was opening day at Yankee Stadium, when a neighbor asked another, "Wonder how the Giants are doing?" "Please stop worrying about the minor league," came the sour rejoinder. Another customer squawked about the conspicuous absence of mustard on one of the Stevens Brothers weiners. "Hey, doc," he yelled, "whaddya doin', workin' for Topping." Then there was the griper who leaned over to his friend, "That weather man said it was going to be 70 today." "Yeh," came the reply, "he must have meant near the boiler room."

• The NBA's Dilemma:

The National Basketball Association is at the crossroads at its meeting in New York this weekend. The decisions the league brass make this time around will determine whether the million dollar jackpot becomes just a pot or the NBA regains the glory road. The silly playoffs aggravated a lot of things that were eating out the innards of the league which should be one of the nation's best sports structures. Among the problems to be considered are (1) unsatisfactory rules of play; (2) insufficient financial resources; (3) unreasonable scheduling; (4) bad assignment and supervision of officials; (5) anarchy at the top; (6) complete lack of self discipline in the ranks; (7) dull, drawn out games resulting from stalling and fouling; (8) insane partiality, animosity (against New York) and provincialism; (9) minor league cities in major league guise; (10) the impression that a fair test of basketball ability isn't possible in the NBA and (11) bad entertainment which won't bring back customers repeatedly exposed to it.

Sounds like a lot of trouble, but, brother, the NBA has it.

D. Whalen Fires 624

Dick Whalen got off to a fast start to unload a 626 series in the Booster League last night. He fired solos of 224, 206 and 196.

Trailing Whalen were a pair of 533 shooters—Art Lansperry with a 223 high and Ed Sohm, who bagged 200 for his top single.

The remainder of the league scattered out with Don Keyser shooting 213-525, John Brady 521, A. Salmi 513, Jim Howard 509, Elmer Williams 503, Joe Conlin 499, Bob Tierney 499, Jim Ryan 491.

Team results:

Greenkill No. 1 (3) Greenkill No. 2 (0); Rifton Rest 2, Sunnyside Grill 1; Morgan's Rest 2, McDermott's 1, Astor Bar 2, Amell's No. 1 (1); Letus-Inn 3, Haber's Grill 0; Moose Lodge 3, Amell's No. 2 (0).

Spaulding Tops Church Keglers With 180 Mark

Howard "Hod" Spaulding was the Church Federation International League's best kegler with a 180 average for the 1953-54 season.

Spaulding had an eight-point bulge over runnerup Bob Fatum, who finished 172. There was a 13-point spread between these two worthies and the remainder of the field.

Everett Wolven won the league high single award with 241, although Spaulding had the best mark—245—and league top series of 621. Clayton Harder was awarded the high series prize with 563.

Turner Choice Over Bobby Jones

Philadelphia, April 21 (AP)—Gil Turner, the welterweight turned middleweight turned welterweight fights in the middleweight field again tonight in a scheduled 10 rounder against Bobby Jones.

Turner and his manager, George Kat, claim they aren't interested in the middleweight war. They want to meet Carmine Basilio for the right to take on 147 pound champion Kid Gavilan. But the Philadelphia flurry puncher continues to campaign with the 160 pounders.

In fact, promoter Herman Taylor says the winner of tonight's nationally televised (CBS) fight will earn an outdoor crack at Joey Giardello, the Philadelphian tapped as Carl (Bobo) Olson's next 160 pound title opponent.

This Turner-Jones setto is a return bout. The Jones boy, a 3-1 underdog last March, won a split decision over Turner.

The Reading, Pa. Indians will open defense of the title at home in a night game with Allentown. The only daylight game on the opening card finds the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Barons playing the Grays at Williamsport, Pa.

The other arc-light openers pit Albany's Senators against the Blue Jays at Schenectady and the Elmira Pioneers against the Triplets at Binghamton.

Snead, Mangrum Tourney Choices

Las Vegas, Nev., April 21 (AP)—Twenty select professional golfers took their last practice shots today before heading into formal firing in the $35,000 Tournament of Champions tomorrow, and gallery interest centered on Sam Snead and Lloyd Mangrum.

Play is over the Desert Inn Country Club course, which stretches 7,102 grassy yards over this converted desert country.

Par is 36-36-72, and it was not as easy as expected when the event was inaugurated a year ago. Nine of 20 contestants broke par in the first round last year, but only seven were still under par 288 at the end of the 72 holes of play.

Snead was installed as the probable favorite mainly because of his victory April 12 in the Masters in a playoff with Ben Hogan.

Mangrum, however, emerging from a slump earlier in the winter, began to play like the old Mangrum and finished up the Masters with a 69 and a tie with E. J. (Dutch) Harrison for fourth place.

Hartford, Conn.—Larry Boardman, 135, Marlboro, Conn., knocked out Johnny Watson, 135, Providence, R. I., 1.

High School Relay Squad May Run at New Paltz Relays

Kingston High's DUSO championship relay squad may compete in the 440 and 880-yard relays at the annual New Paltz Relays, Coach G. Warren Kias said today.

The Maroon mentor added, however, that Kingston didn't plan any large scale entry in the meet scheduled for May 8. Developments between now and then might change the picture, Kias added.

The crack relay squad is made up of Webster Henderson, Charlie Johnson, Bucky Miller and Charlie Coutant.

Six Dates Listed

The Maroon's cinder aces have six dates scheduled outside the New Paltz Relays. The season opens with a triangular meet at Monticello. Port Jervis is the third school involved.

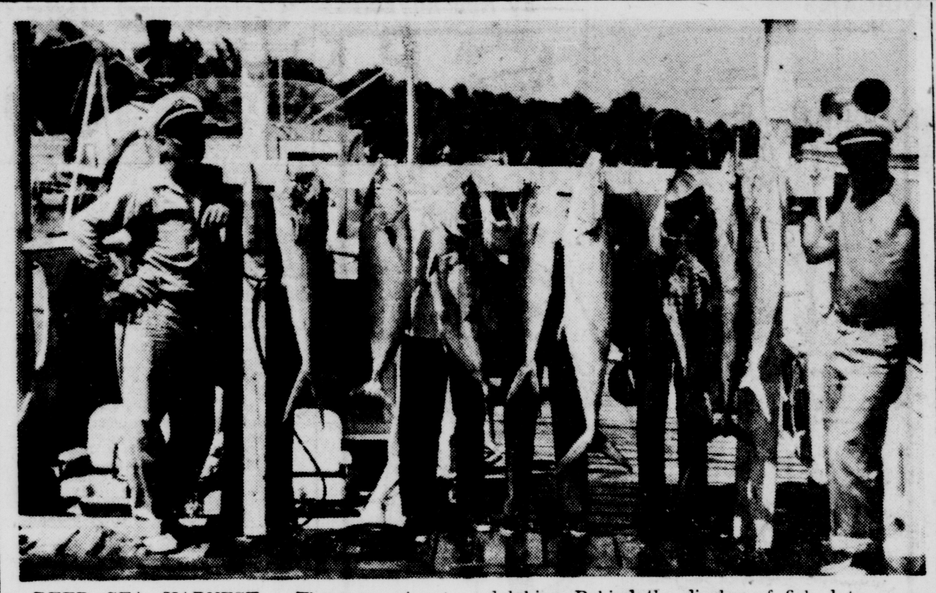

Only two dual meets are slated this season, with Middletown High here on May 14, and at Poughkeepsie on May 20.

The DUSO League meet is slated at Monticello on May 29, followed by the Section 9 event at place to be named later on June 5. The intersectionals are carded at West Point on June 12.

The schedule:

Shooting a six-weeks-old pup is the payoff!

All kinds of trigger happy guardians of excitement and public hysteria have used their sidearms to kill some helpless, excited and bewildered lost dog.

Many of these cases can be blamed on fear and ignorance but when smoke and uproar have cleared, somebody's pet and companion lies lifeless with eyes glazed and tail inert.

Situations based on hysteria are bad enough, but when I read of the premeditated shooting of a six-weeks-old pup by the police officer in a New Jersey town, I can only be convinced that some people hold too lightly the spark that keeps blood coursing through complex tissue—a spark that motivates a wet caress, a yip of greeting, a wagging tail to flag a mute invitation to share the joy of living.

A Reason—Sometimes

Sometimes there is a reason for such an act, poor and illogical as it may be, and more often there is an excuse. In any case, it is the dog who must suffer or, as in this case, a puppy whose enthusiastic and perhaps over-exuberant life is snuffed out.

The excuse offered here was that the puppy was molesting a two-year-old beagle. Acknowledging the nuisance value of weaning the pup of a large breed, it could only do harm by accident due to the clumsiness and lack of coordination. Its desire to play and cavort with an older dog, who thought it beneath his dignity to respond in kind, should hardly be rewarded by execution.

Granting that the responsibility for the puppy's death may be shared by an irresponsible owner, who allowed the pup to run at large at a risk to its welfare and a liability to the neighborhood, there is still room for a sense of values and a respect for a living animal whose life should never be forfeited needlessly.

Tighten Our Moral Fibre

Perhaps we should tighten the weave of our moral fibre and see that our responsibilities are properly met. After all, we are entirely accountable for the presence of dogs—every last one of them—in our civilization.

Every dog produced is by definite human design or less definite human laxity. We humans derive pride of ownership, companionship and various services from our dogs. They give us these things and their loyalty too, all within the limitations naturally placed upon them. We must each of us recognize these limitations and assume responsibility for their safety.

MY Greatest Shot

By BEN HOGAN

Under the circumstances, I believe that the shot I made at the 10th hole at Oakland Hills (Detroit) in 1951 was my best.

It was a 2-iron shot to the 10th green.

I've hit a lot more just as good, but this was a most important shot.

It was the last round of the United States Open championship and I was two strokes back of Jimmy Demaret and Bobby Locke.

A Tough Par-4

After I had gone out in 1-under par, I came to the 10th, a real tough, 448-yard par 4. I reasoned that if I could get by this hole in par and could stay 1-under for the round, I would have a great chance. I did not believe that Demaret or Locke would shoot par or one over on this final round.

The 10th hole of the Oakland Hills course calls for a tough tee shot. I hit the fairway in a good place. The pin lay on the right and short on the green. There was a big bunker and an elevated green to be considered. I used a 2-iron and cut the ball.

It "feathered" and held about five feet from the hole. The shot was about 215 yards. I continued for a 67 and the victory.

This was outstanding, I thought, because I figured this as the key hole to the tournament. Sometimes you find yourself in that position. As it developed, I was right.

So, I shall always remember that shot.

Next: Walter Burkemo, PGA champion.

Bulls Pay Off

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—W. Kerr Scott, candidate for the U. S. Senate recalled during a radio interview that in 1919 he walked 21 miles from Kingston to Hargett's Cross Roads after a cab driver wanted to charge him $21 for a trip. He offered a registered bull calf to anyone bettering his walking time of six hours. Forty ambitious walkers took up the challenge and 36 won a bull calf each. The fastest time was 4 hours, 8 minutes; the slowest 5:31.

Will Bring $3.52 Price

New York, April 21 (AP)—Dr. C. J. Blanford, market administrator for the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, has estimated that milk delivered in April to approved plants will bring a uniform price of $3.52 per hundredweight (46.5 quarts). The producer butterfat differential, he said yesterday, is expected to be six cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the standard 3.5 per cent. Blanford said his price estimate is based on an expected production of 764 million pounds in April, or an average of 505 pounds per day from each of the approximately 50,400 individual producers. The actual uniform price for April is to be computed not later than May 14.

All kinds of trigger happy guardians of excitement and public hysteria have used their sidearms to kill some helpless, excited and bewildered lost dog.

Many of these cases can be blamed on fear and ignorance but when smoke and uproar have cleared, somebody's pet and companion lies lifeless with eyes glazed and tail inert.

Situations based on hysteria are bad enough, but when I read of the premeditated shooting of a six-weeks-old pup by the police officer in a New Jersey town, I can only be convinced that some people hold too lightly the spark that keeps blood coursing through complex tissue—a spark that motivates a wet caress, a yip of greeting, a wagging tail to flag a mute invitation to share the joy of living.

A Reason—Sometimes

Sometimes there is a reason for such an act, poor and illogical as it may be, and more often there is an excuse. In any case, it is the dog who must suffer or, as in this case, a puppy whose enthusiastic and perhaps over-exuberant life is snuffed out.

The excuse offered here was that the puppy was molesting a two-year-old beagle. Acknowledging the nuisance value of weaning the pup of a large breed, it could only do harm by accident due to the clumsiness and lack of coordination. Its desire to play and cavort with an older dog, who thought it beneath his dignity to respond in kind, should hardly be rewarded by execution.

Granting that the responsibility for the puppy's death may be shared by an irresponsible owner, who allowed the pup to run at large at a risk to its welfare and a liability to the neighborhood, there is still room for a sense of values and a respect for a living animal whose life should never be forfeited needlessly.

Tighten Our Moral Fibre

Perhaps we should tighten the weave of our moral fibre and see that our responsibilities are properly met. After all, we are entirely accountable for the presence of dogs—every last one of them—in our civilization.

Every dog produced is by definite human design or less definite human laxity. We humans derive pride of ownership, companionship and various services from our dogs. They give us these things and their loyalty too, all within the limitations naturally placed upon them. We must each of us recognize these limitations and assume responsibility for their safety.

Bulls Pay Off

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—W. Kerr Scott, candidate for the U. S. Senate recalled during a radio interview that in 1919 he walked 21 miles from Kingston to Hargett's Cross Roads after a cab driver wanted to charge him $21 for a trip. He offered a registered bull calf to anyone bettering his walking time of six hours. Forty ambitious walkers took up the challenge and 36 won a bull calf each. The fastest time was 4 hours, 8 minutes; the slowest 5:31.

Will Bring $3.52 Price

New York, April 21 (AP)—Dr. C. J. Blanford, market administrator for the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, has estimated that milk delivered in April to approved plants will bring a uniform price of $3.52 per hundredweight (46.5 quarts). The producer butterfat differential, he said yesterday, is expected to be six cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the standard 3.5 per cent. Blanford said his price estimate is based on an expected production of 764 million pounds in April, or an average of 505 pounds per day from each of the approximately 50,400 individual producers. The actual uniform price for April is to be computed not later than May 14.

MY Greatest Shot

By BEN HOGAN

Under the circumstances, I believe that the shot I made at the 10th hole at Oakland Hills (Detroit) in 1951 was my best.

It was a 2-iron shot to the 0th green.

I've hit a lot nore just as good, but this was a most important shot.

It was the last round of the United States Open championship and I was two strokes back of Jimmy Demaret and Bobby Locke.

A Tough Par-4

After I had gone out in 1-under par, I came to the 10th, a real tough, 448-yard par 4. I reasoned that if I could get by this hole in par and could stay 1-under for the round, I would have a great chance. I did not believe that Demaret or Locke would shoot par or one over on this final round.

The 10th hole of the Oakland Hills course calls for a tough tee shot. I hit the fairway in a good place. The pin lay on the right and short on the green. There was a big bunker and an elevated green to be considered. I used a 2-iron and cut the ball.

It "feathered" and held about five feet from the hole. The shot was about 215 yards. I continued for a 67 and the victory.

This was outstanding, I thought, because I figured this as the key hole to the tournament. Sometimes you find yourself in that position. As it developed, I was right.

So, I shall always remember that shot.

Next: Walter Burkemo, PGA champion.

Most Garagemen

cars are shown by the inspection to need correction. On the other hand, he said, "we might test the car, and then (the driver) might take it out to somebody else" for the work.

Have Been 'Unamious'

B. C. Anderson, of Bev. Anderson Chevrolet, Inc., and president of the Automobile Dealers Association of Kingston, pointed out that all dealers have been "unanimous" in supporting compulsory inspection for years.

Outlining the operation of the compulsory inspection in Pennsylvania, where he worked for a number of years prior to coming here, Anderson said he felt there was little chance of abuse in the system of having privately owned stations. "No station will violate provisions of the law, because of the chance of losing its inspection license," he said. The New York law is patterned after Pennsylvania's, with privately owned inspection stations, rather than after New Jersey's, where the state owns and operates its own inspection stations.

Asks More Information

Like most independents, Edward H. Franz, propietor of the City Garage hopes to apply for a license as an inspection station, and is anxious to receive more information about how to apply and what equipment and facilities will be required.

Al Bruckert, proprietor of Tony's Brake Service, indicated that he will apply for a license, but noted that there has been "a lot of speculation" over what the requirements will be. Some of the garage men feel a heavy investment in equipment will be prohibitive. Although the law fixes no prices, Bruckert pointed out that customers will undoubtedly complain if a garage charges more than $1.50 of $2 at the most, and such returns would not warrant any large capital outlay.

Will 'Try to Apply'

Clayton S. Elmendorf, proprietor of Doc Smith's Garage, said he is "going to try to apply for a station." He agreed "there is not much you get out of it" except "a chance of the people getting the work done here."

Like the new car dealers, the independents agreed that the first consideration was safety. The thought was expressed by Joseph DiPeri, of DiPeri Auto Service, "I'm all for it. It will be a good thing for better safety on the road." He indicated that he, too, will apply for a inspection station license "if possible."

About 13,000 inspection stations will be licensed in the state. One dealer estimated today that Kingston will have perhaps 25 licensed stations. This element of competition will serve to minimize delays in inspections and will be a safeguard for motorists who fear that a garage man would be tempted to use his authority as an inspector to sell a customer unneeded repair work.

Weather Roundup Is Added for Readers

Beginning today on Page One The Freeman offers a roundup of weather conditions in 10 of the nation's key cities.

This material is supplied by The Associated Press. New York Bureau Chief Samuel G. Blackman was asked to supply the data as an added feature for Freeman subscribers and today's roundup is his reply.

Windshield Blight

denly developed dimples still was a mystery today.

Two-hundred new pock-marked windshields have been reported here to add to the thousand previously reported throughout the country.

Explanations ranged from vandalism to radioactivity and from grit to Gremlins. Some even though it really wasn't happening. But nobody seemed sure.

One theory—that radioactivity caused the chips, dents, scratches, or whatever they are—apparently was eliminated last week when navy officials ruled out the possibility.

But yesterday a scientist at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, said he found radioactive material in dirt samples taken from tops of cars whose windshields were mysteriously pockmarked. The scientist, who asked to remain anonymous, hinted the radioactive particles had something to do with the dimples.

Car, They Find, Was Stolen

Liberty, Tex., April 21 (AP)—Officers, going about their business in and out of the Liberty county jail parking lot, grumbled and griped about having to walk around the 1946 Buick. For three months they did this. State highway patrolmen Dan Duggan and Perry Price became so aggravated yesterday they decided to find the owner. Their investigation disclosed the car had been stolen in Houston, tex., three months before. The thief had driven it onto the jail lot and left it.

Democratic contests in five congressional districts and three Republican fights were settled.

Two incumbents, Rep. Alfred D. Sieminski, a Demoacrat, and Rep. Frank C. Osmers, Jr., a Republican, won re-nomination.

T. James Tumulty of Jersey City, a Democrat seeking the seat to be vacated by Rep. Edward H. Hart, won nomination in the heavily Democratic 14th district. Tumulty is a former state assemblyman and the nephew of the late James Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson.

Fred E. Shepard of Elizabeth, an ardent supporter of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, appeared to be the victor by 54 votes in the Sixth District over Francis V. Lowden, one-time Republican chairman of Union county. The ballots were counted twice and were due for a third count today.

Guy Gabrielson Jr., son of the former Republican national chairman, was third in the seven-man race and out of the running.

The GOP nominee will run against Rep. Harrison A. Williams, the first Democrat elected to Congress from the normally-Republican Sixth District.

Assembly Minority Leader Frank Thompson Jr., of Trenton appeared to have won a three-cornered Democratic race to seek the fourth congressional seat now held by Rep. Charles R. Howell. Howell is Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Democratic contests in the normally Republican Second and Third Districts were won by politically unknowns.

Dulles Is in Paris

bolic act of banding together in the midst of a common danger into the reality of an effective common defense. Of equal importance is the habit of continuance—I could truthfully say—daily consultation in the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Dulles said Friday's meeting would be a continuation of that process of consultation. In such fashion, he added, the 14 member countries would be able to perfect their understanding of each other's problems.

"On this understanding," he said, "on a common purpose, the future of all of us depends."

Dulles made no mention of the talks he planned to have in Paris on the Geneva conference.

Stands by Decision

An informed American source here said earlier the United States would stand by its decision to oppose an expected Russian move to turn the Geneva meeting into a "big five" conference with Red China—even if such opposition broke up the conference.

Before leaving Washington last night, Dulles implied this would be his stand. He reiterated American participation at the Geneva parley "does not imply our diplomatic recognition of Red China." The United States insists the Peiping regime is an invited participant, not a big-power instigator of the meeting starting April 26.

The American secretary said he was going to the Geneva conference to seek an "honorable peace in Indochina and a free, united Korea."

A meeting of the Big Three western foreign ministers has been arranged for tomorrow evening, shortly after the arrival of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. They will meet privately for a brief discussion and then will bring in their experts for more detailed talks.

French sources said the discussions would cover not only the Korean and Indochinese questions but also would deal with the proposed western reply to Russia's note of March 31 in which Russia offered to participate in NATO.

Seven Men Are Killed

Burbank, Calif., April 21 (AP)—Seven lives were lost when an air force Flying Boxcar smashed against a fog-hidden mountain yesterday. The wreckage and most of the bodies burned. The C119 from Charleston, S. C., was making an instrument approach to Lockheed Air Terminal here when it struck Mission Peak in the Santa Susana Mountains, 14 miles away.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME (Registered U. S. Patent Office) By JIMMY HATLO

cars are shown by the inspection to need correction. On the other hand, he said, "we might test the car, and then (the driver) might take it out to somebody else" for the work.

Have Been 'Unamious'

B. C. Anderson, of Bev. Anderson Chevrolet, Inc., and president of the Automobile Dealers Association of Kingston, pointed out that all dealers have been "unanimous" in supporting compulsory inspection for years.

Outlining the operation of the compulsory inspection in Pennsylvania, where he worked for a number of years prior to coming here, Anderson said he felt there was little chance of abuse in the system of having privately owned stations. "No station will violate provisions of the law, because of the chance of losing its inspection license," he said. The New York law is patterned after Pennsylvania's, with privately owned inspection stations, rather than after New Jersey's, where the state owns and operates its own inspection stations.

Asks More Information

Like most independents, Edward H. Franz, propietor of the City Garage hopes to apply for a license as an inspection station, and is anxious to receive more information about how to apply and what equipment and facilities will be required.

Al Bruckert, proprietor of Tony's Brake Service, indicated that he will apply for a license, but noted that there has been "a lot of speculation" over what the requirements will be. Some of the garage men feel a heavy investment in equipment will be prohibitive. Although the law fixes no prices, Bruckert pointed out that customers will undoubtedly complain if a garage charges more than $1.50 of $2 at the most, and such returns would not warrant any large capital outlay.

Will 'Try to Apply'

Clayton S. Elmendorf, proprietor of Doc Smith's Garage, said he is "going to try to apply for a station." He agreed "there is not much you get out of it" except "a chance of the people getting the work done here."

Like the new car dealers, the independents agreed that the first consideration was safety. The thought was expressed by Joseph DiPeri, of DiPeri Auto Service, "I'm all for it. It will be a good thing for better safety on the road." He indicated that he, too, will apply for a inspection station license "if possible."

About 13,000 inspection stations will be licensed in the state. One dealer estimated today that Kingston will have perhaps 25 licensed stations. This element of competition will serve to minimize delays in inspections and will be a safeguard for motorists who fear that a garage man would be tempted to use his authority as an inspector to sell a customer unneeded repair work.

Weather Roundup Is Added for Readers

Beginning today on Page One The Freeman offers a roundup of weather conditions in 10 of the nation's key cities.

This material is supplied by The Associated Press. New York Bureau Chief Samuel G. Blackman was asked to supply the data as an added feature for Freeman subscribers and today's roundup is his reply.

Windshield Blight

denly developed dimples still was a mystery today.

Two-hundred new pock-marked windshields have been reported here to add to the thousand previously reported throughout the country.

Explanations ranged from vandalism to radioactivity and from grit to Gremlins. Some even though it really wasn't happening. But nobody seemed sure.

One theory—that radioactivity caused the chips, dents, scratches, or whatever they are—apparently was eliminated last week when navy officials ruled out the possibility.

But yesterday a scientist at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, said he found radioactive material in dirt samples taken from tops of cars whose windshields were mysteriously pockmarked. The scientist, who asked to remain anonymous, hinted the radioactive particles had something to do with the dimples.

Car, They Find, Was Stolen

Liberty, Tex., April 21 (AP)—Officers, going about their business in and out of the Liberty county jail parking lot, grumbled and griped about having to walk around the 1946 Buick. For three months they did this. State highway patrolmen Dan Duggan and Perry Price became so aggravated yesterday they decided to find the owner. Their investigation disclosed the car had been stolen in Houston, tex., three months before. The thief had driven it onto the jail lot, and left it.

Democratic contests in five congressional districts and three Republican fights were settled.

Two incumbents, Rep. Alfred D. Sieminski, a Demoacrat, and Rep. Frank C. Osmers, Jr., a Republican, won re-nomination.

T. James Tumulty of Jersey City, a Democrat seeking the seat to be vacated by Rep. Edward H. Hart, won nomination in the heavily Democratic 14th district. Tumulty is a former state assemblyman and the nephew of the late James Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson.

Fred E. Shepard of Elizabeth, an ardent supporter of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, appeared to be the victor by 54 votes in the Sixth District over Francis V. Lowden, one-time Republican chairman of Union county. The ballots were counted twice and were due for a third count today.

Guy Gabrielson Jr., son of the former Republican national chairman, was third in the seven-man race and out of the running.

The GOP nominee will run against Rep. Harrison A. Williams, the first Democrat elected to Congress from the normally-Republican Sixth District.

Assembly Minority Leader Frank Thompson Jr., of Trenton appeared to have won a three-cornered Democratic race to seek the fourth congressional seat now held by Rep. Charles R. Howell. Howell is Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Democratic contests in the normally Republican Second and Third Districts were won by politically unknowns.

Dulles Is in Paris

bolic act of banding together in the midst of a common danger into the reality of an effective common defense. Of equal importance is the habit of continuance—I could truthfully say—daily consultation in the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Dulles said Friday's meeting would be a continuation of that process of consultation. In such fashion, he added, the 14 member countries would be able to perfect their understanding of each other's problems.

"On this understanding," he said, "on a common purpose, the future of all of us depends."

Dulles made no mention of the talks he planned to have in Paris on the Geneva conference.

Stands by Decision

An informed American source here said earlier the United States would stand by its decision to oppose an expected Russian move to turn the Geneva meeting into a "big five" conference with Red China—even if such opposition broke up the conference.

Before leaving Washington last night, Dulles implied this would be his stand. He reiterated American participation at the Geneva parley "does not imply our diplomatic recognition of Red China." The United States insists the Peiping regime is an invited participant, not a big-power instigator of the meeting starting April 26.

The American secretary said he was going to the Geneva conference to seek an "honorable peace in Indochina and a free, united Korea."

A meeting of the Big Three western foreign ministers has been arranged for tomorrow evening, shortly after the arrival of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. They will meet privately for a brief discussion and then will bring in their experts for more detailed talks.

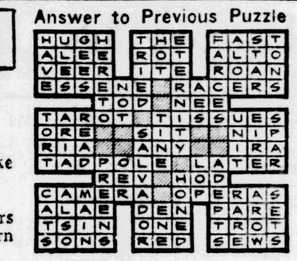

French sources said the discussions would cover not only the Korean and Indochinese questions but also would deal with the proposed western reply to Russia's note of March 31 in which Russia offered to participate in NATO.

Seven Men Are Killed

Burbank, Calif., April 21 (AP)—Seven lives were lost when an air force Flying Boxcar smashed against a fog-hidden mountain yesterday. The wreckage and most of the bodies burned. The C119 from Charleston, S. C., was making an instrument approach to Lockheed Air Terminal here when it struck Mission Peak in the Santa Susana Mountains, 14 miles away.

have been stationed in Indochina to help maintain these planes.

Twenty-five or more American civilians under private contract also are piloting some of the transport planes carrying supplies to Dien Bien Phu, but no American air force personnel have taken part in the flying operations in the combat zone.

In Tokyo last week, the air force announced the temporary transfer of a squadron of American C119 Flyong Boxcars—capable of carrying about 12 tons of cargo each—to the Philippines for airlifting supplies to Indochina. Squadron personnel maintain the planes but will not normally fly the Indochina run, the air force said.

On Sunday 25 speedy U. S. Navy Corsair fighter-bombers were transferred from the American carrier Saipan to a French airbase on the Viet Nam coast to bolster the battle against the Red-commanded rebels. Their American pilots returned immediately to the carrier.

In addition to this emergency aid, the United States has been sending a billion dollars worth of military and economic assistance to the French and Vietnamese in Indochina.

Two-Headed Baby Dies

Washington, Ind., April 21 (AP)—Indiana's two-headed Hartley baby, which had survived an attack of pneumonia, died yesterday of a respiratory ailment. The baby was 4 months and 8 days old. The fatal illness developed suddenly. With a temperature of 105 degrees the baby was rushed 13 miles from its home at Petersburg to the Davies County Hospital where it was born Dec. 12. The hospital said both heads were blue when it was admitted. The weaker side died first, the other side 15 minutes later. The baby, child of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hartley, bore two names on a single birth certificate. The 44-year-old father said at the time the names were given that he gave the name Donald Ray to "the best one" and the name Daniel Kaye to the other side.

Fire Razes Two Barns, Sheds on Ruby Farm

This is a view of the scorched earth on the Albert Cook farm, Ruby road, where two barns and a series of sheds burned Tuesday afternoon, when fire, reportedly starting in stored hay, spread in the wind. Sparks ignited grass in the vicinity to make a stubborn blaze that made it difficult for volunteer fire companies. (Freeman photo)

Two Barns, Sheds

2:56 p. m., and a tank truck from the West Hurley Fire Department and a piece of equipment from Lynch's Hose, Saugerties, at 3:50 p. m.

Proceeded Northwest

Assistant Chief Joseph Dyer of Ulster Hose told The Freeman that the fire, originating in the hay barn on the Cook farm, located just south of Ruby, burned past the village, "jumped the road a couple of times" and proceeded northwest back of the schoolhouse toward the Hughes farm.

Scheffel said the fire "skipped the village" and worked its way within two or three hundred feet of the Hughes home before it was stopped.

"That's where we knocked it out," he said.

The fire "cleaned up" two barns, a long wagon shed, storage and wood sheds, a corn crib and a chicken coop, did considerable damage to an old stone house formerly occupied by farm help, "pretty well scorched" the main house and destroyed a tractor, tree sprayer and other equipment, Scheffel said.

Shingles Blow Off

Shingles blew off the barn in a "pretty strong wind" and scattered the fire to grass and brush. It spread rapidly, resulting in urgent appeals for assistance.

Scheffel said the fire caught in the top of some pine trees but burned out quickly. A lot of trees may die, however, he believes, due to the fact that fire which burned heavy layers of pine needles and leaves might have "killed the roots" of some of them.

Firemen drove some of the equipment into the woods, "knocking down a few trees" in order to bring streams on the blaze making rapid headway in brisk winds, according to Scheffel, who said the Mt. Marion-Ruby truck damaged its running boards somewhat in the process. Firemen fought the blaze with brooms and rakes.

Notes From Plane

A small plane from the Kingston-Ulster Airport operated by Herbert Stauning of Lake Katrine, an Eastern Airlines pilot, flew over the area and dropped notes with weights attached to firemen.

"It was such a big area we couldn't cover it too well," Scheffel said, explaining that the plane "helped us quite a lot." Information supplied by the plane enabled the firemen to "fight the worst spots first."

Dyer told The Freeman the plane had been in contact with Conservation Department trucks on the ground by means of two-way radio telephone. He said that in this type of fire two-way radio, installation of which is now under discussion in the county, would be a "godsend." The conservation trucks were provided by Aaron Van DeBogart, forest ranger.

Equipment at Scene

The following equipment was at the scene: Mt. Marion-Ruby Fire Department, two fire trucks and a water tanker; Ulster Hose, a pumper, water tanker and emergency truck; Sawkill, a fire truck and water tanker; West Hurley, a water tanker, and Lynch's Hose, a pumper.

West Hurley equipment was secured at 6:10 p. m., Lynch's Hose at 6:33 p. m., Ulster Hose at 6:40 p. m. and Sawkill at 9:33 p. m.

A fire last November destroyed a large barn on the Cook estate. Judge Albert H. Cook, Sr., said today the barns which burned yesterday were "quite old." The property has not been occupied in about a year.

Papers to Discontinue

Jamestown, N. Y., April 21 (AP)—The Jamestown Sun, one of six daily newspapers published by by the AFL International Typographical Union, said in today's edition that the other five would discontinue publication Friday. Lack of support from advertisers was listed as the reason. The announcement was made by Woodruff Randolph, ITU president. The affected newspapers, all named the Daily News-Digest, are published in Meriden, Conn., Texarkana, Ark., Huntington, W. Va., and Allentown, Pa.

The answers to everyday insurance problems* By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: An elderly woman, who lives with her nephew in our neighborhood, accidentally poked her umbrella into a man's eye not long ago. She has no money so her nephew paid the man's doctor bills. Is there any kind of insurance which would cover that accident?

U. S. Flies French

have been stationed in Indochina to help maintain these planes.

Twenty-five or more American civilians under private contract also are piloting some of the transport planes carrying supplies to Dien Bien Phu, but no American air force personnel have taken part in the flying operations in the combat zone.

In Tokyo last week, the air force announced the temporary transfer of a squadron of American C119 Flyong Boxcars—capable of carrying about 12 tons of cargo each—to the Philippines for airlifting supplies to Indochina. Squadron personnel maintain the planes but will not normally fly the Indochina run, the air force said.

On Sunday 25 speedy U. S. Navy Corsair fighter-bombers were transferred from the American carrier Saipan to a French airbase on the Viet Nam coast to bolster the battle against the Red-commanded rebels. Their American pilots returned immediately to the carrier.

In addition to this emergency aid, the United States has been sending a billion dollars worth of military and economic assistance to the French and Vietnamese in Indochina.

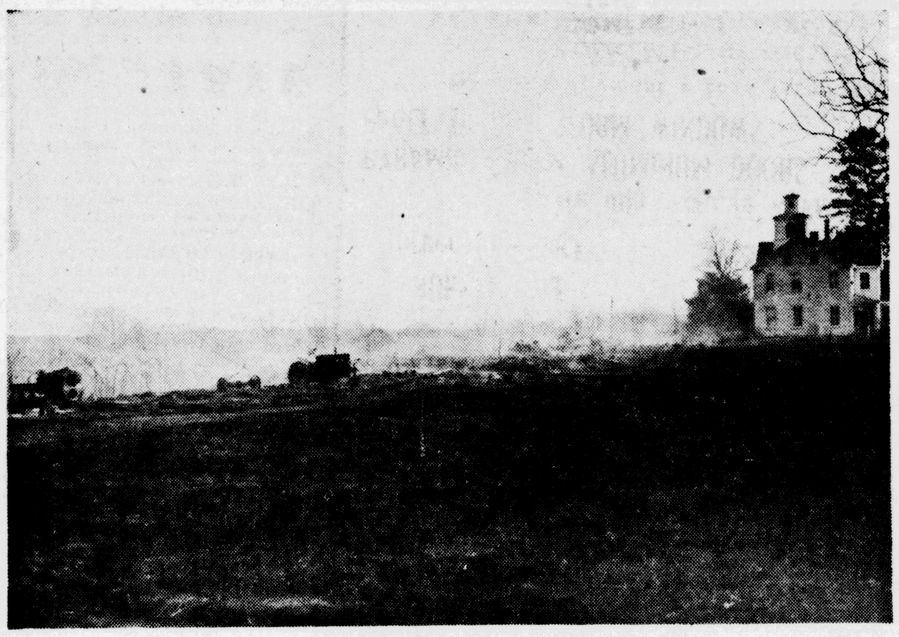

Two-Headed Baby Dies

Washington, Ind., April 21 (AP) —Indiana's two-headed Hartley baby, which had survived an attack of pneumonia, died yesterday of a respiratory ailment. The baby was 4 months and 8 days old. The fatal illness developed suddenly. With a temperature of 105 degrees the baby was rushed 13 miles from its home at Petersburg to the Davies County Hospital where it was born Dec. 12. The hospital said both heads were blue when it was admitted. The weaker side died first, the other side 15 minutes later. The baby, child of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hartley, bore two names on a single birth certificate. The 44-year-old father said at the time the names were given that he gave the name Donald Ray to "the best one" and the name Daniel Kaye to the other side.

Variation

The cuckoo which lays its eggs in the nest of another species of bird to be raised shows remarkable variation in the type of eggs laid, many of them resembling those of the host birds.

Fire Razes Two Barns, Sheds on Ruby Farm

This is a view of the scorched earth on the Albert Cook farm, Ruby road, where two barns and a series of sheds burned Tuesday afternoon, when fire, reportedly starting in stored hay, spread in the wind. Sparks ignited grass in the vicinity to make a stubborn blaze that made it difficult for volunteer fire companies. (Freeman photo)

Two Barns, Sheds

2:56 p. m., and a tank truck from the West Hurley Fire Department and a piece of equipment from Lynch's Hose, Saugerties, at 3:50 p. m.

Proceeded Northwest

Assistant Chief Joseph Dyer of Ulster Hose told The Freeman that the fire, originating in the hay barn on the Cook farm, located just south of Ruby, burned past the village, "jumped the road a couple of times" and proceeded northwest back of the schoolhouse toward the Hughes farm.

Scheffel said the fire "skipped the village" and worked its way within two or three hundred feet of the Hughes home before it was stopped.

"That's where we knocked it out," he said.

The fire "cleaned up" two barns, a long wagon shed, storage and wood sheds, a corn crib and a chicken coop, did considerable damage to an old stone house formerly occupied by farm help, "pretty well scorched" the main house and destroyed a tractor, tree sprayer and other equipment, Scheffel said.

Shingles Blow Off

Shingles blew off the barn in a "pretty strong wind" and scattered the fire to grass and brush. It spread rapidly, resulting in urgent appeals for assistance.

Scheffel said the fire caught in the top of some pine trees but burned out quickly. A lot of trees may die, however, he believes, due to the fact that fire which burned heavy layers of pine needles and leaves might have "killed the roots" of some of them.

Firemen drove some of the equipment into the woods, "knocking down a few trees" in order to bring streams on the blaze making rapid headway in brisk winds, according to Scheffel, who said the Mt. Marion-Ruby truck damaged its running boards somewhat in the process. Firemen fought the blaze with brooms and rakes.

Notes From Plane

A small plane from the Kingston-Ulster Airport operated by Herbert Stauning of Lake Katrine, an Eastern Airlines pilot, flew over the area and dropped notes with weights attached to firemen.

"It was such a big area we couldn't cover it too well," Scheffel said, explaining that the plane "helped us quite a lot." Information supplied by the plane enabled the firemen to "fight the worst spots first."

Dyer told The Freeman the plane had been in contact with Conservation Department trucks on the ground by means of two-way radio telephone. He said that in this type of fire two-way radio, installation of which is now under discussion in the county, would be a "godsend." The conservation trucks were provided by Aaron Van DeBogart, forest ranger.

Equipment at Scene

The following equipment was at the scene: Mt. Marion-Ruby Fire Department, two fire trucks and a water tanker; Ulster Hose, a pumper, water tanker and emergency truck; Sawkill, a fire truck and water tanker; West Hurley, a water tanker, and Lynch's Hose, a pumper.

West Hurley equipment was secured at 6:10 p. m., Lynch's Hose at 6:33 p. m., Ulster Hose at 6:40 p. m. and Sawkill at 9:33 p. m.

A fire last November destroyed a large barn on the Cook estate. Judge Albert H. Cook, Sr., said today the barns which burned yesterday were "quite old." The property has not been occupied in about a year.

Papers to Discontinue

Jamestown, N. Y., April 21 (AP) —The Jamestown Sun, one of six daily newspapers published by by the AFL International Typographical Union, said in today's edition that the other five would discontinue publication Friday. Lack of support from advertisers was listed as the reason. The announcement was made by Woodruff Randolph, ITU president. The affected newspapers, all named the Daily News-Digest, are published in Meriden, Conn., Texarkana, Ark., Huntington, W. Va., and Allentown, Pa.

The answers to everyday insurance problems*
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: An elderly woman, who lives with her nephew in our neighborhood, accidentally poked her umbrella into a man's eye not long ago. She has no money so her nephew paid the man's doctor bills. Is there any kind of insurance which would cover that accident?

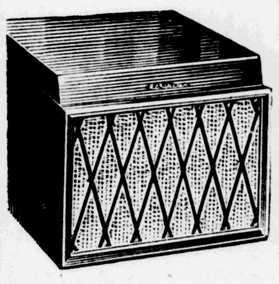

ANSWER: If the nephew carried Comprehensive Personal Liability insurance it would cover any dependent who was a regular part of his household. That would include the Aunt as you describe the situation.

* If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE or OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.
